(By HERBERT W. WALKER)

WASHINGTON.—The conference of the nations on arms limitation is at work.

Within 30 minutes after the great conclave met Saturday, America in a bold dramatic manner, which amazed the diplomats of the old world, placed her cards on the table.

Then Secretary of State Hughes, the United States, informed the world that she is ready to make a surprisingly drastic cut in her naval armament and told Great Britain and Japan the extent she believes the sea forces of those two nations should be reduced.

A short time later the delegates of Britain and Japan were closeted with their advisors closely examining the American armament limitation proposal.

ORGANIZATION EFFECTED

In a session that lasted one minute less than two hours, the arms conference:

Was welcomed by President Harding.

Unanimously chose Secretary Hughes as its presiding officer.

Elected John W. Garrett of Baltimore secretary-general.

Formed committees to map out program and procedure on arms limitation and Far Eastern questions.

Received from Secretary Hughes the American program for limitation of naval armaments.

Held foreign delegates pledge their heartiest support to the work of the conference.

MEETS TUESDAY

The program was carried out with typically American dispatch and snap. At its conclusion the conference adjourned to meet next Tuesday at 11 a.m. in Memorial Continental Hall, where Saturday's sessions were held.

Around the conference table grouped the flower of the world's diplomacy. Secretary of State Hughes and the American delegation headed the table. Behind Hughes sat Pershing. In a lofty box was America's first lady—Mrs. Harding.

Hughes raised his hand.

"The conference said 'will be opened with prayer.'

Rev. W. S. Abernethy, of Calvary Baptist church prayed that Divine guidance might lead the conference to a lightening of the world's burden of sorrow.

President Harding, whose call brought the delegates from the ends of the earth, entered. He welcomed the delegates warmly, told them what the world expected of them, and left them to their task.

Hardly had the cheers and hand clapping died away following Harding's speech before Arthur Badour, courtly and worldly wise head of the British delegation, pulled his rather awkward length erect and addressing Hughes, at his right, said: "He knew he voiced the wish of the whole conference in asking him to take the reins and preside over all conference sessions."

Emphatic deeds of affirmation and spontaneous applause showed that the delegates were unanimously agreed. Hughes accepted and got to the work of the conference.

In clear direct accents, he told the conference the world expected it to lighten the terrible burden of competitive armament. The way to do that he said, was not to pass resolutions or indulge in fine phrases, but to agree on a plan of actual reduction so tangible that it would be instantly translated into dollars and cents in reduced taxes.

AMERICAN PROPOSITION

America is willing to set the pace in this, Hughes said, by scrapping forty ships, totalling more than 400,000 tons.

When Hughes said that he unleashed enthusiasm that swept the meeting out of his control, and made it seem rousing rally of friendly citizens who saw a dream coming true. There had been applause before but it was a mere whisper to the thunders of sound that broke upon the ears of the stolid, self-contained foreign delegates. Men pounded each other upon the back. They climbed on chairs. They danced up and down. They yelled. That "rebel yell" tore thru' the bedlam of sound again and again. Hughes smiled and waited. The foreign delegations masked their feelings behind trained inscrutability.

Senator Lodge arose, the crowd applauded, not knowing what to expect.

"Mr. Chairman," said Senator Lodge, "I move the conference do adjourn."

A gale of laughter over the announcement, the conference adjourned.

WOULD BIND THREE NATIONS

Sets Limit for America, Britain and Japan.

WASHINGTON.—A ten year naval holiday in naval construction, involving a tremendous scrapping of ships now on the ways or contemplated by the United States, Great Britain and Japan was proposed to the conference on limitation of armaments by Secretary Hughes at the opening session Saturday, as America's proposals.

Briefly the American program is:

That there immediately be destroyed by the navies of the three great powers, 66 capital fighting ships and a total tonnage of 1,878,043 tons. Within three months after making an agreement the navies would consist of designated and agreed upon ships as follows:

United States 18; Great Britain 22; Japan 10.

In tons this would be: United States 500,650; Great Britain 604,450; Japan 249,700.

REPLACEMENT LIMIT

Replacement would be limited by an agreed maximum of capital ship tonnage as follows:

United States 500,000 tons; Great Britain 500,000 tons; Japan 300,000 tons.

Subject to the ten year holiday limitation capital ships could be replaced when they are 20 years old. No replacement ship would have a tonnage of more than 35,000.

A total tonnage in cruisers, flotilla leaders and destroyers for each power would be fixed as follows:

For the United States 450,000 tons; for Great Britain 450,000 tons; for Japan 270,000 tons.

SUBMARINE TONNAGE

The total tonnage of submarines allowed each power would be as follows:

For the United States 90,000 tons; for Great Britain 90,000 tons; for Japan 54,000 tons.

The total tonnage of airplane carriers was proposed as follows:

For the United States 80,000 tons; for Great Britain 80,000 tons; for Japan 48,000 tons.

In each case it would be provided that no government whose present tonnage exceeds the prescribed limit would be required to scrap such excess until replacements have been begun.

Cruisers 17 years old could be replaced by new construction.

Similarly destroyers, flotilla leaders and submarines could be replaced when 12 years old and airplane carriers when 20 years old.

Limitation of airplane construction was not outlined in detail in the American proposal but it was declared in the proposal that since the importance of the merchant marine is a factor in any naval armament program "regulations must be provided" to govern the conversion of merchant craft for war purposes.

Other features of the auxiliary craft reduction program included:

Exemption from the terms of the agreement of existing monitors; unarmored surface craft under 3,000 tons; fuel ships, supply ships, tenders, repair ships, tugs and mine sweepers.

No new auxiliary combatant craft could be built, exempt from terms of the agreement, that exceeded 3,000 tons, had a speed of more than 15 knots and carried more than four five-inch guns.

All auxiliary surface craft whose keels already have been laid could be carried to completion. Agreement will be made later for details of scrapping the ships falling outside the proposed limitation.

Labor Fights Renewal of Anglo-Japanese Alliance

(By CHARLES M. McCANN)

LONDON.—Abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance in favor of a general international agreement to restore the sovereignty of China, is what British labor hopes will be the outcome of the Washington disarmament conference.

The hope was expressed by Arthur Henderson, M. P., in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

"For labor the conference is dealing with two crucial matters which are to some extent connected: First, naval disarmament, and second the international relations between Britain, United States and Japan," Henderson said.

"Japan has undoubtedly pursued during the last few years an im-

SPEED UP PROGRAM

Meeting of Good Roads Council Called for Monday to Start Work

Developments anticipated at a meeting of the Allen-co Good Roads council in the chamber of commerce auditorium Monday night are expected to materially speed up the five-year road building program, according to statements made by J. T. Shumaker, district engineer for the state highway department, Saturday.

Whether Allen-co will benefit by the presidents' signature to the federal aid bill several days ago, which makes one-third of the county's state highway fund of $209,000 available immediately will be taken advantage of, rests entirely with Allen-co, according to Shumaker.

MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

The meeting of the Good Roads Council Monday night is expected to draw some sentiment from Allen-countians as to whether they want good roads in the county or not.

"There was not a new road built in Allen-co in 1921," said Shumaker Saturday. Road improvements cost only slightly over $1,500.

BLACKHAND IS BELIEVED RESPONSIBLE

Mrs. Hoppus Receives Threatening Letter Following Phone Demand

POLICE GET CLUE

Others Threatened When Large Sums of Cash are Asked by Man

For a second time within four days, a demand for payment of $500 was made upon Mrs. Nelle Hoppus, 131 E. Euclid-st., Saturday night. The demand was in the form of a typewritten message delivered thru a messenger boy.

The message was handed to Ralph Countryman, 17, Postal messenger by a tall dark man who met him in front of the Norval Hotel, shortly after 7 p.m. A previous demand, the fifth made in Lima during the last week, was made by telephone Wednesday. Both demands were for $500.

Description of the man who sent the letter, leads the police to believe the series of demands for money may be work of the Blackhand, or Cinnamora.

The letter was typed on plain white paper and enclosed in a plain white envelope. It was addressed to "Mrs. Hoppus, 131 E. Euclid-st."

DEATH IS THREATENED

The message within stated:

"Leave $500 west of the bear pit in city park before 11:30 or death will result."

The letter was unsigned. Officers watched the bear pit until 1 a.m. but no one appeared.

At 7 p.m., Ralph Countryman, messenger for the Postal Telegraph company was sent to the Norval hotel in response to a call. He was told by the clerk no one at the hotel had called for him.

He turned away and as he passed out, a man on the walk asked him if he was a Postal messenger. Ralph describes the man as being tall, dark complected an wearing a dark green hat, black overcoat and dark suit.

The man handed him a letter and a coin.

"Take this to this address," he said.

Unaware of its contents, Ralph delivered the letter and returned to the office.

Mrs. Hoppus was frightened when she read the message. She telephoned police. Winslow a man who disguised his voice to impersonate a woman, telephoned demanding money. He ordered that the money be left at the Market House, or her house would be burned, her daughter stolen, and she would meet death.

Police officers were concealed at the Market House that night, but no one appeared.

FIVE WOMEN CALLED

Since November 5, five Lima women have received demands for money by someone speaking over the telephone. In nearly every instance the amount asked has been $500.

The women including Mrs. Hoppus are:

Mrs. Anna Hoover, 703 W. High-st.

Mrs. Jennie Clark, 517 Linden-av.

BRYAN SAYS JAPS WILL ACCEPT

Nebraskan Sees Success of Arms Conference

STEP TOWARD WORLD PEACE

Won't Be Any Turning Back, He Declares

(By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN)

WASHINGTON.—The most important thing in politics is the drawing of a definite line.

The temptation of the politician is to indulge in generalities; a specific program is always necessary when a step in advance is to be taken.

President Harding's speech laid the foundation for the statement of Secretary Hughes which followed. The president was positive in committing the United States to a policy "less of armament and none of war."

Secretary Hughes worked up to his climax, using words increasingly definite and emphatic until he announced the program proposed by the United States, namely:

The discontinuance of all battleship construction for ten years.

The scrapping of more than a million and a half tons of naval vessels of which the United States would contribute $45,000 tons, the British 583,000 tons and the Japanese 239,000 tons. The United States will lead in the number of tons scrapped altho we do not have the largest navy.

WILL NEVER TURN BACK

Here is a program for other nations to accept or reject.

If they accept, the conference will mark a tremendous step forward toward universal peace.

If the navies of the world are immediately reduced as proposed and the world has ten years of rest from the unbearable expense of preparedness, it will never turn back.

No one person can claim a large share of the credit for the movement because coercion was found in the mingled voices of the multitudes in all lands. Governments do not speak for themselves; they merely give expression to the heart throb of the overburdened masses and these masses are not likely to tolerate any return to conditions that have compelled this conference.

The president and Secretary Hughes have sensed the sentiment of America. Their words will be applauded by an unanimity that few, if any previous utterances have commanded. Their words are ringing with hope; they will stir a response so loud, so long and so irresistible as to fix our nation's position at the head of the peace forces of the world.

SEES ACCEPTANCE

While no one in this country can speak so confidently of sentiments in other lands, it is not improbable that surging humanity—who are like a heart everywhere—will speak words of command to any government that falters, but it is not likely that any government will falter.

If I were to venture a prediction, it would be that Great Britain will accept immediately and that Japan will follow at once, thus making the proposition the minimum of the conference's accomplishments.

Japan, conscious that America's offer opens a way to the plaudits of the world, as well as the relief of her own people, may even anticipate Great Britain's action and say "we are ready to go as far as the United States will go in disarming on land and sea."

November 12th may become even greater than November 11th.

Three years ago yesterday the world was happier than it had been before in centuries, perhaps in all history. Today's proceedings may open the way to a Thanksgiving still more joyous when the world can rest in the belief that we are in the process of ultimate extinction.

FORGERY CHARGED

Mansfield Man Nabbed By Police Here Saturday.

R. R. Meeks, 26, who told the police he resides in Mansfield, was taken into custody at 608 S. Elizabeth last Saturday by Detectives Rolla Glover and Ross Landiford, on a charge of issuing a worthless check to the Lima Rubber company, in payment for two tires and inner tubes.

The man told the officers he is a tool dresser. The check issued to the rubber company was drawn on a bank in Akron and the amount of the check was for more than $60. It was returned marked "no funds."

Considerable property, belonging to Meeks was taken over by the police, including a Saxon touring car, tires said to have been purchased from the rubber company and a suit case filled with tools. A check similar to the one passed was found on his person. It was drawn for $68.75.

Sisters, nurses, members of St. Rita's hospital guild and friends of St. Rita's Hospital ask that their appreciation be expressed to each and every person who in any way assisted in making hospital tag day on Saturday, November 8, a success.

The amount of $900 was realized from the sale of tags on down-town streets. The benefit was in charge of St. Rita's Hospital guild, of which Mrs. A. M. Finch is president. Mrs. J. S. Myers was chairman of tag day plans.

Notification of the week of prayer reached the local association Saturday, but no observance will be held in Lima other than at the meeting Wednesday.

WEATHER DOPE GLOOMY NEWS

JUST when Mr. Average Citizen was congratulating himself that the weather man had relented and was busy dishing up sunshine as an improvement over Friday's impromptu blizzard he was cooking up plans for more rain and possibly snow on Sunday.

Unwelcome as it may be, the weather dope right now is cloudy and warmer Sunday, followed by rain or snow in north and rain in south portion Sunday night or Monday.

Raincoats and shower sticks will probably be the rage this day, if the prognosticator has it figured out correctly. In any event, prepare to take what comes; you'll have to do it anyway and you might as well be optimistic about it.

form all the other parties concerning:

1.—The names or number of the ships to be replaced by new construction.

2.—The date of authorization of replacement tonnage.

3.—The dates of laying the keels of replacement tonnage.

4.—The replacement tonnage of each new ship to be laid down.

5.—The fact and date of completion of each new ship.

6.—The date and date of the scrapping of ships replaced.

A summary of the results of the agreement so far as it affects capital ships was included in the American proposal in the following terms:

"If the terms of this agreement are agreed to, then the United States, Great Britain and Japan agree that their navies, three months after the making of this agreement, shall consist of the following capital ships:

"United States—Maryland, California, Tennessee, Idaho, Mississippi, New Mexico, Arizona, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Nevada, Texas, New York, Arkansas, Wyoming, Florida, North Dakota, Delaware—18. Total tonnage 500,650.

"Great Britain—Royal Sovereign, Royal Oak, Resolution, Ramillies V, Revenge, Queen Elizabeth, Warspite, Valiant, Barham, Malaya, Benbow, Emperor of India, Iron Duke, Marlborough, King George V, Centurion, Ajax, Hood, Renown, Repulse, Tiger—22. Total tonnage 604,450.

"Japan—Nagato, Hiuga, Ise, Yamashiro, Fu-So, Soetsu, Kirishima, Haruna, Hi-Yel, Kongo—10. Total tonnage 293,700."

Regarding the naval armaments of France and Italy, the American proposal says:

"In view of certain extraordinary conditions due to the war affecting the existing strength in the navies of France and Italy, the United States does not consider necessary the discussion at this stage of the proceeding of the tonnage allowances of these nations, but proposes it be reserved for the later consideration of the conference."

CASH DEMANDED OF WOMAN

Mrs. W. R. Clapper, 615 N. Jamison.

Mrs. Clara Clark, 445 N. Fine—1.

In three instances the women were told to leave the money at the corner of the City Bank. All of the women, who received telephone calls were of the opinion that the person speaking was a woman. It is uncertain as to whether part of the calls may not have been made by the man who sent the letter to Mrs. Hopkins. None of the women have been harmed.

Every effort has been made by the police to learn the source of the calls. The description of the man at the Norval, gave them the first clue to the mystery. Captain M. F. Dawson, was of the opinion that he will be apprehended.

Lima has had its share of mysterious letters in the past year. The Carbon case in which demands for sums of money ranging from $5,000 to $25,000 were made on Klement Nauck and Bulgarian grocer, 1219 S. Main-st is the most notable.

Rosa Carbone and her husband, Ross, were arrested and the former was tried and convicted. She jumped her bond, pending an appeal of her case and has disappeared. Ross is also gone.

Following this, the Blackhand was quiet.

Recently, however, several threatening letters have been placed in the hands of the police for investigation.

The series of demands for money during the past week may be a renewal of the Blackhand's work in a new guise.

DINNER AND THEATRE PARTY HELD BY "DUBS"

The following members were present: Frederick Roberts, Harold Ebing, Theodore Ewing, Richard Rohn, Joseph Fritz, Louis Pierce, Wilbur Rotoff, James Steiner and Merle Morrison. Glenn Rohn was a guest of the club.

cost of the war and the continuing burden of armament, all thoughtful peoples wish for real limitation of armament and would like war outlawed. In soberest reflection, the world's hundreds of millions of persons who pay in peace and die in war wish their statesmen to turn the expenditures for destruction into means of construction aimed at a higher state for those who live and follow after.

It is not alone that world cannot readjust itself and cast aside the excess burdens without relief from the pressure of iron. War has grown progressively more, and more destruction to this program does, and the reverse order would most become our boasted civilization.

Gentlemen of the conference, the United States welcomes you with unselfish hands. We harbor no fears; we have no sordid ends to serve, we suspect no enemy; we contemplate or apprehend no conquest. Content with what we have, we seek nothing which is another's. We only wish to do with you that finer, nobler thing which no nation can do alone.

DEFENSES OF WORLD

We wish to sit with you at the table of international understanding and good will. Our good conscience permits us to meet you frank and invite and offer cooperation.

The world demands a sober contemplation of the existing order and the realization that there can be no cure without sacrifice.

Starting at the head of the conference table, he pleaded for frank straightforward exchange of views without suspicion and resort to intrigue.

I do not mean surrendered or narrowed freedom, or ignored national necessities. Our republic would no more ask for these than it would give them. No pride need be humbled, no nationality submerged, but I would have a emergence of minds committing all of us to less preparations for war and more enjoyment of fortune.

NO FEARS HARBORED

America, he explained, goes into the conference with unselfish hands, suspecting no enemy, harboring no fears, neither contemplating nor apprehending conquest—but only upon doing "that finer, nobler thing which no nation can do alone."

Civilization, President Harding declared, has today come to its crucial test.

The address was one of the shortest set speeches he ever made.

"The conclusions of this body will have a signal influence on all human progress—on the fortunes of the world," the president said.

Following the text of the President,

Mr. Secretary and members of the conference ladies and gentlemen:

It is a great and happy privilege to bid the delegates to this conference welcome to the capitol of the United States of America. It is not only a satisfaction to greet you because we were lately participants in a common cause, in which shared sacrifices and sorrows brought our nations more closely together, but it is gratifying to address you as the spokesman of nations whose convictions and attending actions have so much to do with the weal or woe of all mankind.

It is not possible to over appraise the importance of such a conference.

WORLD INFLUENCE

It is no unseemly boast, no disparagement of other nations, which the not represented are held in the highest respect to declare that the conclusions of this body will have a signal influence on all human progress—on the fortunes of the world.

Here is a nation which with the aid of the world's assistance, is an example of the awakened conscience of twentieth century civilization. It is not a convention of remorse, nor is it a session of vipers to define terms of settlement.

Nor is it a conference of nations seeking to remake human kind. It is rather a coming together from all parts of the world to apply the better attributes of mankind, to minimize the faults in our international relationships.

Speaking as official sponsor for the conference, I think I may say the call is not of the United States of America, alone, it is rather the spoken word of a war-weary world, struggling for restoration, hungering and thirsting for better relationships of humanity, crying for relief and craving assurances of everlasting peace.

JUSTICE DEMANDED

It is easy to understand this worldwide aspiration. The glory of triumph, the rejoicing in achievement, the love of liberty, the devotion to justice, the pangs of sorrow, the burden of guilt, the sacrifice of all for the welfare of all these are appraised alike in all lands. Here in the United States we are but freshly turned from the burial of an unknown American soldier, when a nation sorrowed while paying him tribute.

Whether it was spoken or not, a hundred million people were summing the inexorable causes, the incalculable cost, the unspeakable sacrifices and the inutterable sorrows, and there was the ever impelling question: How can humanity justify or God forgive? Human hate demands no such toll, ambition and greed must be denied it. If misunderstanding must take the blame, then let us banish it and let understanding rule and make good will prevail everywhere. All of us demand liberty and justice. There can not be one without the other and we must all the unquestioned rights of all people. Inherent rights are of God, and the tragedies of world originate in their attempt to deny or destroy, when simple sanity calls for their recognition thru common understanding.

MUST END BURDENS

Out of the cataclysm of the world war came new fellowships, new convictions, new aspirations. It is ours to make the most of them. A world staggering with debt needs its burdens lifted. Humanity, which has been shocked by wanton destruction would minimize the agencies of that destruction.

DISTRUST PERILS ARMS PARLEY

Lack of Confidence Between Nations Greatest Obstacle

SUSPICION IS APPARENT

Frank H. Simonds Calls Attention to This Situation

(By FRANK H. SIMONDS)
WASHINGTON — In a preceding article I have discussed a few of the political obstacles in the pathway of success in the Washington conference. Today I mean to deal with one factor which is of almost greater importance, namely the state of mind existing in the nations concerned at the moment the conference opens.

A great deal of harm was done in Paris by reliance upon the false assumption that the victorious nations were united by a common acceptance of identical principles and a similar view as to the application thereof. This mistake arose from the deliberate silencing of every voice which sought to protest against this colossal error. The assumption in Paris was that to discuss any unpleasant truth was to do violence to the cause at stake. This mistake ought not to be repeated.

GREATEST OBSTACLE
At the present moment the greatest obstacle to success in Washington is found in the mutual distrust existing between the three nations most concerned and extending down thru the line to all the nations represented. Between the United States, Great Britain and Japan there is a mutual lack of confidence, which cannot be exaggerated. The American distrust of Great Britain rests upon the conviction, strongly supported by British writers themselves, that at Paris the lofty ideals of Mr. Wilson were brought to nothing by the clever manipulation of Mr. Lloyd George, assisted by M. Clemenceau. There is a general disposition in many quarters to scrutinize British actions here in Washington with utmost care and with the idea that the British are here seeking "to put something over" in their own interest, are in fact trying to entangle the United States in British policy to British profit.

CRITICISMS OF JAPAN
In exactly the same way recent discussions of Japanese policy have led to the creation in the United States of a profound distrust of Japan, have provoked endless criticism of the Japanese course in the Far East—criticism which, however, justified in many instances, has become so universal as to have created a barrier which must be eliminated before real progress can be made.

Nor can one mistake the fact that the Japanese feeling toward Great Britain is one of distrust which can hardly be exaggerated. The conduct of Great Britain in recent months, the unmistakable sympathy of the British people for the American rather than the Japanese policy in the Far East, all from the Japanese point of view seem to overshadow if they do not disclose the desertion of Japan by her British ally.

I shall not dwell upon the distrust felt by the French for the British, or by the Italians for the French. It is not even necessary to call attention to the fact that the Chinese, not without profound justification, distrust every nation which will be represented at the conference. The truth is that the Washington conference assembles in an atmosphere of international suspicion, distrust and cynicism, and unless this atmosphere can be cleared we shall get nowhere.

Nothing in this world would be so futile or so fatal as for British statesmanship at this time to risk extending American distrust by seeking thru a clever stroke or skillful manipulation to win some passing advantage from the United States. There is no stake involved in the Washington conference the complete possession of which would for a single moment recompense Great Britain for the ultimate loss which would result from such a course. If it is only because British interest in the last analysis will be best served by supporting American purposes up to the limit of possibility, and without any ulterior or concealed objective, it seems to me one must accept British good faith and sincerity as beyond question.

There is no successful issue of the Washington conference conceivable which does not involve some association of the United States, Great Britain and Japan in the Far East, some association based upon mutual confidence and mutual recognition of the interests of each and designed to assist in Chinese rehabilitation. The greatest conceivable triumph would be the elimination of present opposition and distrust, and the arrival at some little basis for future construction. Today a world conference which made even a little progress toward international solidarity would be the greatest contribution not alone to moral but to material interest since the assassination of Sarajevo precipitated that world anarchy from which we have not yet escaped.

BALLOT RESULTS AS FORECASTED

"Twas in the Air That a Reversal Was Coming

BILL DURBIN WINS MARION

Smokeless Stacks Bring Change of Sentiment

THE LIMA NEWS BUREAU
Columbus, O., Nov. 12.

COLUMBUS (Special)—Disclaiming the suggestion that he is entitled to eulogies for "calling the turn" on the outcome of the balloting on Tuesday, the facts nevertheless make it appear that the soundings taken in recent weeks have measured the deep with considerable degree of accuracy. No one is entitled to any credit, of course, for predicting a smashing victory for the soldiers' adjusted compensation. That sentiment grew so strong that those who had conspired against it by hooking it up on the ballot with the poll tax bid to run for cover and friends of President Warren G. Harding had, after all, to conclude that the country, hard pressed as it is in comparison to pre-war days, nevertheless could afford to be decent towards the service men and women. Nor is there any special crown coming for sizing up about the ratio in which the voters would dispense with the barbary and impractical poll tax relic of the ages when sovereigns gave subjects the right to live and before Thomas Jefferson and others discovered that the right is not conferred by crown, but arises from fact of life itself. Nor yet can any palm be offered on the calculation that the people would resent not so much a change of senatorial district boundary lines as they would the method that made it a scheme to "put over" the plan without explaining it to them and handing it as a bi-partisan, civic matter rather than as a party plot. Any one with ordinary intelligence might have foreseen exactly these results if he so much as knew there was a state and that it was to vote.

But after looking over those election figures, one simply has to marvel at what the voters would have done in the way of adverse majority if they could have expressed themselves on Governor Harlan L. Davis' reorganizing rider act. The Governor knew when he had it made an emergency, but the voters never can know just how high they could have taken it. The positive majority for the bonus will be somewhere around $60,000, while the negative majority on the riper act would have been as great, may be even greater, if the opportunity had come along. The same remark may be made of most of the taxation amendments that were tossed about during the legislative session last winter, particularly the kind that would have received the sanction from the leadership of either the Senate or the Governor. Possibly something fashioned by the rural roosters and accepted by the cities might have gone across, but nothing else would. Coming from the present General Assembly, it would have been hard to get the Ten Commandments thru and the bonus proposition wasn't helped a particle because it was labeled as it was.

As for the observations of last week that the state and national administrations were "in," no one can be asked to do more or less than look at the figures. What the true overturn was will be difficult to say, but it probably averaged 30 per cent, possibly more because it was voted everywhere except in Cincinnati. Outside the state it was more clearly defined than in Ohio and here the Jacksonians were handicapped because there were many of their followers who did not think anything was possible and hence could not be stirred to action. They know different now and say so. On the other hand, Cincinnati excepted, the G. O. P. men are tickled that the traditional fox was sleeping and not aware of the opportunity. It was the first referendum on state and national politics in a sense and the trend was not such as to call forth any claims of vindication.

It was one of the favorite themes of those writers who worshipped at the feet of Warren Gamaliel that

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a cross, feverish, bilious, or constipated child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowel and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may eat an imitation fig syrup.

Hon. William Wallace Durbin, more familiarly known as Bill, was forever in bad standing with the voters because of the events of last year. But Bill pulled a bunch of his tricks in a few weeks that may cause a revision of judgment. Up in his home town of Kenton he helped put over a Jacksonian mayor to the tune of nearly 1,000, this being a heavy turnover from last year. Then he journeyed down to Marion and addressed the voters, explaining everything to them with care and circumspection. He told the farmers what was being done for them and how the policies of government were helping to get corn down where they could trade off one full bushel for one gallon and on pint of gasoline for their flivvers and how the workmen had plenty of time for leisure. The Republican national committee heard of his journey and complimented him by sending a heavy hitler to Marion in the person of Hon. Simon D. Fess, to help stem the tide. The only thing that was not used was a personal appeal from the President, whether or not he voted for the election, the words do show. At all events, the Democratic candidate, breasted in with a thousand to spare, same being a turnover of just 4,000 votes. He has found favor by being a Democratic mayor in front porch town and the lightning calculators must revise their estimate that Durbin's support is poison to any candidate.

It seems to be indicated that in northwestern and western Ohio the German voters who went to President Harding in a block last fall are turning away and going back to the German Regiment against President Woodrow Wilson is doing fast among them. That has been an uncharitable, long-recognized by shrewd observers who have never yet calculated the exact cause of it. The election returns, however, reflected the changing current and quite unmistakably. For instance, Wapakoneta elected an entire Democratic slate, some by immense majorities, considering the size of the vote, whereas it is solidly Republican in the court house. So it was with other towns. The current having set will likely increase rather than decrease in momentum just as it did not reach a maximum until last year. The figures from this first off year are everywhere worthy of study and indicates the breaking of the racial coalition that existed last year. Other observers say that the Italians remained steadfastly loyal to the Republicans, but that other elements which contributed to the landslide of 1920 began to waver.

There is another element of analysis which is not to be forgotten in the election in Ohio, Labor is slowly rallying from the licks and bumps which it has received. That the first symptom of a small degree of radicalism in public matters should be found in the returns may be a surprise to those who believed that the working man was pleased to see powerful anti-labor forces in places of power. In many places, labor men chose three councilmen, all thereof. Looking deeper, some observers profess to see a positive radicalting to the figures and a decided reversal in form from the election of 1920, when the more reactionary candidate was the bigger was his majority. In Coshocton, a man who was favored by the Socialist element received enough encouragement from others to attain power. So went. Coming at the beginning of winter and in a period of falling wages and hunting for jobs, the symptom is one to be watched by the "politicians."

The old patter about the "common people" may be good stuff again.

If it will be of any satisfaction to him, Hon. George W. Kummer, of Pickaway, can learn that in one county more than $3,000 was spent in advertising for candidates for county boards of education in the recent election. Talk about dragleggers, real drys, imitation drys, soft drinkers and customers of the bootleggers. Then in Cleveland there are certain racial lines. We may assume the Poles, Czechoslovakians, Bulgarians, Greeks, Romanians, Bulgarians, Greeks, Ukrainians, Finns, Danes, etc., etc. all will have delegates, not to mention the Mohammedans, Christians and other sects, including the wicked and sinful of which the city has a few, not yet omitting the safe crackers, pickpockets, gun men who flourished in past years and all that. When it's all over, there probably will be fewer people voting and ever before, a part in civil affairs than ever before, a part in the dreamy-eyed reformers never appreciated. Take the cities that have cut all the dross with municipal government and how many of them had out a real bid vo' on Tuesday? You can count them on the fingers of one hand if people do not vote it is an immortal clinch they are not interested in their government. Under the old, once formed it is possible to get that interest and to have it shown in a remarkable way. For instance, up at Mansfield, which is only of late years a town and perhaps just now should be suspended for a time, it is seen how the new members chosen by the plan, go to work still. It is no particular argument that tens of thousands of dollars were spent on their election in the 88 counties. That money has to come from somewhere.

Isn't it sweet of the Highway Department to get a nice enclosed car for Governor Harry L. Davis? Isn't it tho? And then the nice way in which it was done, buying a sedan type. Get that, sedan type, by competitive bidding, to be sure that nothing shall come in contact with the Governor which is not regular and all. Oh, the people are just too good. But, of course, there is a question whether the Executive will be gracious enough to receive it. Let's hope he will be. Speaking of autos in the state service, there is a history of course, like there is to many things. Back some eight years ago, when Big Jim Marker was Highway Commissioner and $16,000 a mile was a big price to pay for roads, he got a little flock of flivvers—that's alliterative, you will notice—and saved fifty—more alteration—or them each by buying them thru a business arrangement. But flivvers are no longer good enough. They are running to the sedan type now and twin-sizes and all that. What the state's auto bill is in one year would give people a surprise if they had the figures. It's just one of the items in the cost of government, just one, and there are a hundred like it. Nothing now cheaper than a sedan in the state services and the prevailing line is likely soon to be something else.

But, of course, there is a question whether the Executive will be gracious enough to receive it. Let's hope he will be. Speaking of autos in the state service, there is a history of course, like there is to many things. Back some eight years ago, when Big Jim Marker was Highway Commissioner and $16,000 a mile was a big price to pay for roads, he got a little flock of flivvers—that's alliterative, you will notice—and saved fifty—more alteration—or them each by buying them thru a business arrangement. But flivvers are no longer good enough. They are running to the sedan type now and twin-sizes and all that. What the state's auto bill is in one year would give people a surprise if they had the figures. It's just one of the items in the cost of government, just one, and there are a hundred like it. Nothing now cheaper than a sedan in the state services and the prevailing line is likely soon to be something else.

Isn't it sweet of the Highway Department to get a nice enclosed car for Governor Harry L. Davis? Isn't it tho? And then the nice way in which it was done, buying a sedan type. Get that, sedan type, by competitive bidding, to be sure that nothing shall come in contact with the Governor which is not regular and all. Oh, the people are just too good. But, of course, there is a question whether the Executive will be gracious enough to receive it. Let's hope he will be. Speaking of autos in the state service, there is a history of course, like there is to many things. Back some eight years ago, when Big Jim Marker was Highway Commissioner and $16,000 a mile was a big price to pay for roads, he got a little flock of flivvers—that's alliterative, you will notice—and saved fifty—more alteration—or them each by buying them thru a business arrangement. ## SHADOWS CAST BY COMING EVENTS

Election Results Usually Predicted by Indications

G. O. P. TAKES A LICKING

Combination Busted; Partisan Control Prevented

(BY J. W. FISHER)

Electors have a persistent habit in these latter days of doing the unexpected in some respects, but for the most part they give advance indications of what they expect to do collectively at some time before an election.

The ballot rush of last Tuesday was no exception to the general rule, in the indications that were given preceding the casting of the vote. They afforded a hint of the fact that a big majority would favor the soldier bonus but the magnificent vote accorded was far and away beyond all expectations, all of which is most gratifying.

In disposing of the proposed poll tax and Senatorial gerrymander amendments, it was just the other way around. Both were given a swift kick. And that, too, was gratifying, for there is just about as much need for either or both of these amendments as nine wheels on a wagon or three tails on a cat.

In the selection of men to form Lima's first city commission, under the commission-manager form of government, an attempt made to inject a partisan political slate, failed in a decisive manner, when the third member of the slate failed to take with the voters and was next to the very last in the list of ten runners in the ballot marathon.

Two of the slate were elected, but the formation of the first board is such that these will be unable to play the pre-arranged game of the standpat old guard wing of the G. O. P. It's a sad story that was written from the board of elections room on the third floor of the Holmes block to G. O. P. headquarters hard by, the night of election. While it is true that there are three acknowledged Republicans, one Democrat and an independent on the board, it must be remembered that the third Republican is outside the pale of the castle of the G. O. P. czar.

In other words, should any one or more commissioners have an inclination to attempt to carry out a party program, they will find, doubtless, that they will be balked by others, not in sympathy with the old guard plans of procedure. That an effort was made by the standpat element of the G. O. P. to John Harley is the same as they did when he was a candidate for mayor two years ago, is evidenced abundantly by the vote.

It was the personal popularity of Harold Cunningham, splendid citizen that he is, which won for him the support of representatives of all political beliefs from those who pay no allegiance to any particular party. It was not surprising, therefore, that he lead the field. Ellis Jones and Earl Rohm came next, accumulating their main strength from the ranks of those who appear to feel that corporations are legitimate targets to be shot at, in season and out of season. The fact that Harley received several hundred votes less than either Jones or Rohm, all of them are Republican leaders, proves that the same old bolo was out to get him, which succeeded two years ago. However, the support of the younger and more progressive element of his party, aided by Democrats who voted for him on his merits, laying aside political prejudices, put him across.

H. L. Breckinridge, fifth man for the commission, may have pronounced views concerning partisan politics, but he doesn't advertise his leanings. J. R. Rankin, with the endorsement of various potent agencies failed to get inside the winning circle by a small margin. Edwin Blank, socialist leader, trailed Rankin by a few votes, dispelling the belief which generally existed prior to the election that he would be among the winners. Minor Crossley came in next, in the rear of the main field, while Baitis Simpson, Republican politician and adherent of the old guard, with an eleventh hour hook-up on the kite, reared for Rohm and Jones, failed to get what might be termed even a look-in. But for A. L. Wilker, in the last place, Simpson would now be occupying the same position in the commissioner race that the Cincinnati Reds used to hold onto in the league pennant chase. As a candidate, he is a cellar champ.

But the fight is over, the voters have made their choice and the commissioners will get into action on January 1. There is just one thing to do now and that is to forget that a bold attempt was made to inject partisan politics into the new form of government before it got under way. It is believed that good results will be obtained, at least everyone hopes so fervently, after contemplating the past under the federal form of government. If the subject of partisan politics comes to the surface in connection with the operation of the commission-manager plan, no matter whether it is injected by a Republican or a Democrat, it will deserve, and doubtless will receive, the severest condemnation. And here's hoping that it doesn't come up.

All hands to the task now and help put Lima forward civically, industrially, commercially and in every other way, including making it the best governed city in the world.

Undoubtedly, after it had been beautifully lambasted in the primary election in August, in the nomination of candidates for members of the school board, the standpat element of the G. O. P. endeavored to force its will in the election, by injecting candidates by petition in opposition to Homer Hughes and Ralph Austin, members of that party chosen without opposition by the Republicans.

The Jeffersonians, recognizing that Austin and Hughes would be valuable additions to the personnel of the school board, interposed no objection to leaving the field open to them. As a matter of fact, it was the vote accorded by hundreds of Democrats that put Austin and Hughes across the home plate as winners, finally.

That the G. O. P. will have four members of the new school board and the Democrats only one, is of no consequence, since, as in the case of the city commission, there is supposed to be no partisan politics in it. Efforts of the old guard to control the commission and the school board, both of which failed signally, is evidence of the fact that partisanship is dead hard and that the desire to control by a political ring is as permanent as an ingrown toe nail.

With friends to reward and enemies to punish, the old guard is helpless, or practically so, insofar as the school board and the city commission are concerned. There are a sufficient number of men on both boards to assure that merit and ability will be considered in appointments, rather than the maintenance of a political organization. This well!

James E. Sullivan, postmaster this city, an appointee of the Wilson administration, sprung a surprise during the past week, when he announced his resignation, effective November 30, for the purpose of entering the manufacturing business, elsewhere.

His resignation, forwarded to Postmaster General Will Hayes in Washington on Tuesday, had not reached that official Thursday, but it was known that it was on the way and Will was waiting for it, perhaps eagerly, as it paves the way for the appointment of a G. O. P. adherent as Jim's successor. In fact, it is patent that Colonel Albert Edward Gale, prime minister of the close political corporation that holds forth in the Holmes block, third floor rear, is the favored cheetah of the senior faction of the local Republican element.

In other words, as his reward for having presided as Republican county chairman, Albert Edward can have the endorsement of the party committee at any time he wants it, if it has not already been written. There was a time when Colonel John A. Harley was touted as Sullivan's successor, but since he has been elected as a member of the city commission, it isn't likely that he'd consider taking on anything further. In any event, it is practically assured that he wouldn't get far with the committee, controlled as it is.

And then, with Congressman John L. Cable leading the patronage in this district, there'd be another stumbling block. For you must know that Cable is an administration man and believes in committee rule. That would shut Harley out, anyway. Assistant Postmaster Munroa also has his lightning rod up, but with Albert as the heir apparent, Munroa is probably wasting time and effort in monkeying with the so-called civil service examination, if he has any inclinations along that line. It is quite probable that since the postoffice lid is off, with Sullivan's resignation, there'll be several perfectly good Republicans chasing the rainbow, with but little promise.

Several questions have come up concerning the tenure of office of the city commissioners-elect, their powers and the salaries they will draw. For hasn't John secured a number of shells and cannon balls from the ordnance section of the war department to be displayed in the three corners of the triangular village park?

So that County Representative Jasper L. Cochrum may bask in the resurgence of the rays of popularity that are expected to beam upon Congressman John from over Spencerville-way, the aforesaid shells and balls will be sent to Spencerville addressed to the County "Representative."

But Spencerville will pay the freight, probably by public subscription and hire a dray to haul the park decorations to the scene of display. Everybody will have a look, heave a sigh of civic satisfaction and return to the prosaic things of life that features residence in sedate village.

It's great, this thing Congressman John is doing for Spencerville, but most any city or town in the district from which John expects to draw ballot support on a future occasion can have the same thing. It doesn't make any difference if they all speak at once; John has the relays to bestow. Come on in fellers, the water's fine!

VALUATION FIGHT OPENS MONDAY

Gas Company and Utilities Figures Are Protested

EXPERTS ARE STILL AT WORK

Hearing Before Utilities Commission Tomorrow

Whether the city's claim that the valuation of $1,319,529 fixed for the Lima Natural Gas company property by the state public utilities commission is excessive, is expected to be determined at a hearing scheduled before the commission at 1:30 p.m. Monday, in Columbus.

STATE BODY CUTS FIGURES

The Lima Natural Gas company appraised its property holdings several months ago. Experts employed by the company fixed the valuation at $1,355,237. The valuation of $1,319,529 as fixed by the state utilities commission is under protest by the gas company on the grounds that its property has not shown depreciation to the extent of $635,708, the difference between the company's valuation and that fix by the utilities commission.

The city, thru legal counsel, has filed protest, holding that the utilities commission's valuation of the property is too high and contends that the five-year period used by the commission in fixing the valuation is unfair. The highest values ever reached by the items in the inventory prevailed in the five-year period covered, the report asserts, and is therefore detrimental to Lima consumers.

The inventory submitted by the gas company was made upon order by the commission after the company appealed for higher rate than the 65-cent rate specified in the gas franchise ordinance, enacted by council, but rejected by the company.

CITY HIRES EXPERTS

Council recently held a special meeting for the purpose of authorizing expert engineers to re-check both the state utilities commission's valuation and that fixed by the company.

I. R. McClintock, member of the firm of Fuller & McClintock, said Saturday night their engineers had completed a check of approximately 70 per cent of the gas company's property. All chief items were carefully gone over, such as pipe and transmission lines. Figures were being mad ready for use of the city at the hearing Monday afternoon, he said.

City Solicitor H. E. Garling and George Quall, Judge W. K. Leete and J. R. McClintock will appear in the hearing at Columbus Monday afternoon for the city.

Major F. A. Burkhardt will be the speaker of the evening at a meeting of the Kiwanis club at Newark, Monday.

TAG DAY FOR BOOK FUND SATURDAY

City Federation of Clubs Aiding In Library Movement.

Children's Book week will be celebrated in Lima beginning this week. Tag day will be held Saturday to secure funds to purchase books for kiddies.

The Library Extension committee of the City Federation of clubs will cooperate with the public library in the celebration.

The week will be observed over the United States. The movement was organized several years ago and has the endorsement of the American Library association. Boy Scouts, federated clubs and educators everywhere.

Object is to urge upon parents and those interested in children the value of books that are clean, wholesome and inspiring in the development of children and young people. Its slogan is "More Books in the Home."

On the bulletin board at the public library there will be posted throughout the week a carefully selected list of the best new books and attractive new edition of old favorites. A general list of books suitable for children of all ages, which will simplify the selection of the right book for the right child, will also be given.

Club women of Lima have, within the past year, contributed to the federation's library book fund, a sum totaling up to this time the amount of $800.

Needs of the children's department are so great, however, that it has been decided to appeal to the general public for books for the children.

GIVEN CALL FROM GRAND RAPIDS

St. Mark's Church, That City, Seeks His Services.

Rev. Kirk B. O'Ferrall, rector of Christ church, Episcopal, has been extended a call to the Pastorate of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Grand Rapids, Mich. It was stated Saturday night and the report was confirmed by Rev. O'Ferrall.

The Rev. O'Ferrall declared Saturday night that he had no information to give out concerning the call. He said that a meeting of the vestry of Christ church had not been called to take action upon his possible resignation.

The minister announced that he hoped to arrive at a decision by Tuesday as to whether he would or would not accept the call. It is also reported Rev. O'Ferrall is being considered by an Episcopal church in Columbus, altho he declared he knew nothing of a call coming from that city.

Rev. O'Ferrall has been in Lima four years, during which time he has seen the growth of the parish, the improvement and completion of the handsome new church and general growth of all departments as a result of his efforts.

ADmits HIS GUILT

Goines Held to Grand Jury On Forgery Charge.

E. S. Goines, 21, colored, 1415 W. Spring-st was held to the grand jury on a forgery charge, when arraigned before Judge Emmett J. Jackson in criminal court late Saturday.

Goines admitted his guilt. The young negro entered the store of H. M. Bernstein, 205 S. Main-st and tendered a check for $18, in payment for goods.

The check bore the name of Mrs. W. C. Wagner and was drawn on the First National Bank. Bernstein discovered that the check was spurious when it was returned from the bank. There is no Mrs. W. C. Wagner residing in Lima, police say.

Goines was arrested Wednesday night. He was transferred from city jail to the Allen co jail Saturday.

Petition Put Up to Arms Conference, Bryan Says

PARLEY OPENING IMPRESSIVE

Bryan Comments on Meet and Tribute to "Unknown"

(By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN)

WASHINGTON.—The opening of the conference could not have been more impressive.

While the burial of the unknown soldier yesterday was not strictly a part of the disarmament conference, it brought together all of the principal delegates. The president's speech was almost entirely devoted to the subject which calls the conference together.

If all the peace advocates of the world had joined in planning a service which would portray the awfulness of war and proclaim the glories of peace, they could not have conceived such a compelling scene as that upon which the conference looked on Armistice Day.

WORSHIP INSPIRED

An air of solemnity pervaded the amphitheater. Seldom have so many people assembled, listened and dispersed so silently. The religious element combined with the spirit of patriotism inspired a feeling of worship and consecration. The delegates present, who attended today's opening session of the conference, cannot but have been profoundly impressed and moved by the spectacle. The president's think rose to the lofty requirements of the extraordinary occasion. Although, in expression and in delivery, he surpassed all of his previous efforts. Only a great occasion calls for a great speech. He is not likely to go beyond the record of that day."

Several of his sentences will live. One "On the threshold of eternity, many a soldier, I can well believe, wondered how his ebbing blood would color the stream of life," and another "Burial here is rather more than a sign of government's favor—it is a suggestion of a tomb in the heart of a nation sorrowing for its noble dead," are worthy of the best traditions of American eloquence.

PETITION ON HEAD

No commanding officer and no soldier whose name was known could so fittingly receive the nation's honor plead so eloquently against the carnage of battlefield. From the beginning of history, myriads of unknowns have been offered on the altar of Mars, and of millions more who, for a fleeting day were known by name and loved by friends no record remains. Their blood pleads piteously for peace, their sacrifices have purchased for posterity release from bondage to the barbarians of war.

All of the noble dead join in the petition presented by the living that the conference now in session lead the world peace thru universal disarmament.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

BROKEN up with two holidays, developments the past week added little in forecasting business conditions. Stocks have been climbing while bonds have firmed at present levels. Unfilled steel account shows a decline; live stock sags and grains strengthen. Money advanced from its recent low and again commanded six per cent in New York.

Evidence is accumulating that the country as a whole is slowly emerging from the long period of depression caused by deflation. Labor is still resisting declines but leaders gradually show a desire to meet employers on a fair basis at the present buying power of money. A vivid illustration of our deflation is pork loins, which are selling at just half the price they commanded a year ago.

Retail trade shows more volume in Lima, while industry on the contrary, has not staged a revival. Orders for locomotives are few and for the whole country only about 100 have been placed with all makers since September first. Lima awaits the replenishment of motive power by railroads before it can get back upon its real stride. Motor truck inquiries are increasing, but sales are slow; and this industry seems to be in for the long swing. Smaller industries over the city are running at fair capacity.

Money is still very tight and in poor supply locally. Building and loans continue to finance thru time certificates which the banks are forced to carry for their own customers. Banks themselves are heavy borrowers from Federal and private correspondent sources. Real estate is dull, and good Lima dirt in the business district is a buy at this stage, while residence property in either industrial centers or in the better classed residential area can be picked up at bargains, if taken on or before the first of the year.

Lima is moving forward, but is not in high gear. Eighty-five per cent of her working people are employed and many of these, owing to the decline in foodstuffs and wearables, now enjoy a wider margin for buying luxuries than at any time since 1916.

OOOO

OH, PLEASE MR. HARDING

WHEN the Republicans swept into full power at Washington great hopes were built up among business men that "government by pen and frank" would cease, and business be permitted to pursue its way unhampered by the red-tape of useless bureaus seeking post-information which a school boy accountant could read at a glance.

Corporations are now literally besieged by franked postage asking such silly questions as why was an officer's salary raised; or why did you expend 15c for a new spittoon when your inventory shows you had bought one in 1913.

Then again in June one branch of the government seeking the stock tax would say a plant was worth $220,000 and collect corporation stock taxes on that figure. In January the Revenue bureau having in charge income taxes would point blank write back telling you that your plant (invested capital) was not $220,000. If business is to be taxed at one valuation by one department, duly accepted as worth the amount by that department, why is it necessary for another bureau to declare the first bureau to be a liar?

After all the panaceas have been worked over, new yeast put into the mixture, and a new oven used for baking the Balm of Gilead, we may find two simple truths about prosperity. First, that it is not a governmental manufactured article; secondly, that if you let good honest straight-away Americans do business without eternally putting on handicaps, business will come back. Prosperity will appear and these good old United States will pay themselves out of the war debts so smoothly and easily that even Washington will be surprised.

AS YOU LIKE IT

The Republican newspapers of the state which hearkened to the plea from G. O. P. headquarters that they boost the senatorial goyemander are not saying anything further about it since the voters swatted the thing under the belt.

It was expected that all the "ado" that was going the rounds a few weeks ago about the Ku Klux Klan would die out sooner or later, but it seems to have passed out of the public mind sooner than anticipated.

THE STRANGE LURE

ONE of the wisest Americans that ever lived was Phineas T. Barnum, the circus man. He was the first big advertiser.

Barnum, son of a village tavern-keeper, was a wizard at psychology—the study of human nature. Socrates would have enjoyed talking to him—and probably learned something new.

In 1834 Barnum heard of Joyce Heath, alleged negro nurse of George Washington. He bought her for $1000, took her around on exhibition and cleaned up a lot of money.

His next venture was taking hold of a complete failure, the American Museum of New York. It ceased to be a failure the day Barnum bought it. He announced that the museum had acquired a woolly horse, a white negress, a combination of fish and monkey called the "Japanese mermaid," also General Tom Thumb, the famous dwarf.

Did people see these freaks? They did! Why, it's interesting even to read about them, after the lapse of 80 years.

The secret of Barnum's success was simple. Realizing that this world at its best is rather dull, he intuitively caught the idea that people will flock to see the unusual.

A healthy baby born in Lima to parents you don't know, does not interest you. But if you are told the baby has six teeth, you sit up and take notice.

Many shrewd men have recognized this psychological truth and profited by it. That is, they have opened the gates to fortune by doing the customary "old stuff" in a slightly different way. At this trick, politicians especially are expert, each election-time trotting out the old bunko with a new coat of paint like Barnum's white elephant, which was exposed when the rain washed the whitewash off during a rain.

Take what you are doing for a living. If you can figure out how to do it in a different, more interesting way, success is yours.

Barnum, the he had interesting exhibits, knew that no one would hear of them unless he advertised. Among other kinds of advertising, he invented the billboard.

But his greatest ad was his circus parade, winding up with a calliope that rang in your ears for weeks to keep the circus in your memory. No conservative band for Barnum.

Barnum died in 1891. His circus went on. Finally it consolidated with Ringling Bros.—the Ding Dong Brothers, as they are called in the sawdust ring. During the 1920 season, the parade was eliminated. That must have had an effect on the cash register, for Charlie Ringling announces that the parade will be restored in 1922, grander than ever, to recover lost ground.

There's a tip to advertisers: Keep everlasting at it.

ATTABOY, MR. VICTROLA

BEFORE the collapse of Prohibition Chief Haynes occurs, now so freely rumored, we suggest that the New Jersey phonograph makers of His Master's Voice fame, get after Mr. Haynes' many utterances and everlastingly preserve his vaporings for Anti Saloon League posterity.

Mr. Haynes has done more talking for the press since he brushed Hillsboro dust from his shoes and entered the sacred portals, than any other government attache in years. To read his remarks one would be led to believe that John Barleycorn was so deeply buried in New York and Chicago that Resurrection day would never come. But going to these cities and finding Scotch and soda at 80¢ a drink brings doubt that Mr. Haynes knows of what he speaks.

Whether or aye, we hope some press clipping bureau will send this little hint to Mr. Victrola, Camden, New Jersey.

Editor, The Lima News:

Why not ask some of the employed married women of the city who have husbands working and no children dependent on their salaries to give up their jobs or have their husbands give up theirs, so that another man can have a chance to earn some money? I think it would be a big step in relieving unemployment in Lima. I think I am safe in saying there are scores of married women working now whose husbands also are drawing salaries.

Can we go back to the days when a man was supposed to be able to support his wife and children? Or else, if she chooses to be the "bread winner," why not let him be the "bread baker?"

YOU AND I : COMMENT ON TOPICS OF INTEREST TO ALL

CONTROL

Moffatt Johnston, actor, was wounded in the war. Off the stage, he limps when he walks. While acting, the limp vanishes.

This is his explanation: "When I become a character on the stage, I forget myself. For the moment, I am a shadow, and shadows cannot have shrapnel wounds, so I don't. It's the power of mind over matter."

Many of our illnesses and troubles would vanish if we stopped thinking about them. Difficulties are magnified by self-pity. You can hypnotize yourself into believing or attaining almost anything. Consider the homely woman who constantly imagines that men are trying to flirt with her.

Have the city council pass an ordinance re-routing the cars so that the public can transfer at the four corners of Main and Market sts. Get out of this country town idea of a shelter house. Bring out some metropolitan ideas that will put the city on the map!

Your street car system in Lima, I would say, is punk. The people of Lima are paying too much for service. I moved here from a town where you ride in any direction for five cents, with a universal transfer.

Another matter that needs attention from city council is, not to allow men to stand on the rear platform of cars. They talk to the conductor, chewing, smoking and spitting. Make them step inside, and let the car crew devote more time to the public. Especially, let the conductor alone so that he may call the various streets. I have noticed since I have been in Lima, that the only streets called by conductors are those within a stone throw of the square.

From the general appearance of your city, I judge the officials are asleep at the switch. I don't want to be a knocker, but I would like to see Lima put on the map because I am now located here.

The pond running thru your city is another matter where action is needed. When I first came here I did not know whether to cross it or not for fear of being overcome by the foul odor which greet me.

I would like to hear what some of the older residents have to say on these matters.

HEALTH TALKS

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well
DIET

Even the most expert of dieticians can formulate but few rules as to the wise choice of foods. The wise physiologist can not depend altogether on his knowledge of food values, while to the layman, the problem is so complicated as to oblige him to rely mainly on his own instincts.

Animals, except when domesticated, depend altogether on instinct. Civilization has so blunted man's instinct as regards the selecting of foods that it is often faulty, yet dieticians say that man's food instincts are far keener if he obeys the rule of eating slowly.

In choosing foods it is difficult to distinguish absolutely between what are "good" and "bad" foods because there is no line of division. About all that it is possible to say is that some foods are better than others, remembering that it is usually more important to be satisfied, even if the foods are not "ideal," than to be unsatisfied with what is in the abstract seen as "ideal" foods.

Among the best foods for most people are fruits, potatoes, nuts (if well chewed), milk, both sweet and sour—and vegetables. Among the worst foods are putrefactive cheeses, sweetbreads, liver, kidneys, "high" game or poultry.

A close study, of course, will show some faults as well as some virtues in almost any food and vice versa. The best way for the ordinary man and woman to do in choosing foods is to eat as much as possible of the better and as little as possible of the worse without attempting to draw a hard and fast line.

Salt, pepper, spices, in fact all hot condiments should be used in sparing quantities, as they serve to dull the sense of taste and the instinct for selecting good foods.

A great cause of ill health is found in the overuse of sugar, especially in concentrated forms, such as candy. People's sedentary habits—that is, those who live a life of practical inactivity, should be especially cautious about consuming too much of sweet foods. Sugar has a high food value and is readily utilized for combustion in the body. If eaten between meals it is likely to increase the calories or heat units above the amount needed "y" and lead to overnourishment.

In foods the axiom "What is one man's meat is another poison" is often peculiarly applicable. As for instance, some people find that bananas do not agree with them. The reason usually is that they do not eat ripe bananas. The ignorant public, as a rule, buys bananas that are an even yellow. The best bananas are mottled with black.

Investigators have called attention to the importance of variety of diet, since a momentous diet ceases to awaken the appetite and leads to lowered nutrition.

FIGHT STARTS ON RAILROAD LAW

Esh-Cummins Measure To Be Attacked Monday.

RAILROAD REFUND BILL UP

Amendments Offered as Riders to Refunding Bill.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(Special)

A fight to restore the control of state railroad commissions over interstate rates, as recommended in a recent resolution of the Ohio legislature and to repeal the main provisions of the Esh-Cummins Railroad law of 1920, will open in the Senate Monday.

The Senate will have up for consideration the railroad refunding bill, which authorizes the President to sell railroad securities now in the treasury to make available $500,000,000 for the settlement of railroad claims against the government.

Chambers of Commerce, manufacturers and other business organizations in cities all over Ohio have been carrying on a vigorous propaganda in favor of the bill.

Both Senators Pomerene and Willis will support the measure, which has already been adopted by the House with the votes of all the Ohio Congressmen who were present for the roll call. When the refunding bill is taken up Monday, senators of the agricultural "block" from the middle west and south will attempt to attach to the bill as a rider amendments repealing the main provisions of the present Transportation Act.

Amendments to the Transportation Act, introduced in the form of separate bills, were offered at the beginning of the present session by Senators Capper, Republican, Kansas; Trammell, Democrat, Florida, and La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin. All the senators named have been identified in the senate with the agricultural "block," the members of which are pledged to vote for the repeal of the main provisions of the present law.

The principal amendments which will be offered here the coming week as riders to the Refunding Bill, will provide as follows:

1. Repeal of the rate guaranty in section 422, sub-section 15 a, under which the railroads increased freight rates 35 per cent, passenger fares 20 per cent and Pullman fares 50 per cent, on August 26, last year.

2. Restoration of state control over rates on shipments within the state.

3. A mandate to the president requiring him to offset the debt owed to the government by the railroads, estimated at $1,200,000,000, with the debt owed to the railroads by the government, estimated at $500,000,000, compelling the railroads to pay the balance due.

Discussion of these amendments is expected to re-open the whole railroad question for debate. Senators from the middle west have served notice that they will cite testimony from the recent hearings on freight rates at Columbus and before the railroad commissions of other states to prove that the Esh-Cummins law has resulted in prohibitive rates.

Senators Cummins, Republican, Iowa, and Senator Pomerene, Democrat, Ohio, are preparing speeches in defense of the present law which they helped to write in the 66th Congress.

Senator Willis of Ohio succeeded this week in obtaining a unanimous consent agreement for a vote on the Willis-Campbell anti-medical beer bill, to be taken at noon next Friday. The reaching of this agreement ended a filibuster of several months against the bill introduced by the Ohio senator. Senator Stanley, Democrat, Kentucky, and Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, led the fight against the anti-beer bill. Senator Stanley announced on the floor this week that the opponents of the measure were willing that it should come to a vote now that the provisions of the bill had been fully discussed. The Kentucky senator denied a persistent report that a few men desiring to serve a few brewers without regard to the merits of the case, were obstructing legislation.

It is conceded on both sides in the senate that the conference report on the Willis bill will be adopted by a clear majority Friday.

Prospective candidates on the Democratic ticket in the Ohio Congressional elections of next year are to be called together soon for a convention at which campaign plans will be discussed. It was learned in Washington this week.

All the Ohio Democratic congressmen who retired last March will be invited to attend the conference, which is to be held in Ohio.

The list of ex-congressmen invited to participate will include Judge Warren Gandy, Hamilton, Benjamin F. Welty, Lima; Martin L. Davey, Kent, and William A. Ashbrook, Johnstown.

Other leading Democrats of the state will be called in and Senator Atlee Pomerene, who is to be a candidate to succeed himself next fall will be asked to address the conference.

Ohio Democrats in Washington this week expressed gratification over the returns from the municipal and state elections of Tuesday. They interpreted the returns as showing a trend against the administration, for failure to reduce taxes in accordance with the campaign pledges of 1920.

Ohio members of the House lined up solidly this week behind the House leaders who opposed instructions binding the House conferees to insist on a 50 per cent surtax in the Revenue bill.

When the House passed the bill in August it fixed the surtax rate at 32 per cent, all the Ohio Republicans voting for the bill in that form. The Senate increased the rate to 50 per cent. The conferees who are now attempting to reconcile the terms of the House and Senate bills are expected to report a compromise provision within the next ten days.

None of the Ohio congressmen joined with the 25 Republicans who voted with the Democrats Thursday to instruct the House conferees to insist on retention of the 50 per cent surtax.

Representatives C. L. Knight, Akron, and Harry C. Gahn, Cleveland, who are understood to favor the 50 per cent rate, are absent from the city and were listed as not voting. Representative John G. Cooper, Youngstown, whose position on the surtax question had been regarded as doubtful, voted with the majority of his colleagues against instructions to the conferees.

House "insurgents" have given notice that they will resume their fight for a 50 per cent surtax on incomes in excess of $68,000 a year when the conference report is brought back to the House within the next two weeks for final adoption.

Frocks—

The frocks of the season are Peggy Page, Worth, and those which come to us from great designers, for the styling is so fascinating, and the prices are exceedingly moderate. We have just received a selection from Worth that express the winter mode in trimming, and we are surprised to learn that Oriental brodelles and a d. embossed have become very popular. Prices on our entire selection of frocks ranges from

Silks—

Economy in buying silks is not in the low price or the amount which you save over some other piece—it is in the quality and coloring you buy. The cheaper quality, looks cheaper, wears cheaper, and is the loss in the long run, but the material that you pay more for looks better, and wears so much better that the economy of the buy is only here. We cannot offer you the lowest price on silks, because we do not carry this standard of goods, but we can offer you the best investment in quality. But the real reason for your buying the quality silk is that the 75% better silk, costs only between 5 to 10% more. We carry all the shades of the season in a variety of adaptable materials, and safeguard your purchase of them with the support and reputation of the House.

Crepes—

Canton crepes in both plain and satin finishes, 40 inches wide, in all staple shades. An excellent quality at $3.98 yard.

Crepes de chine, 40 inches wide, in both light and dark shades, at $2.00 a yard. This is a durable and heavy fabric.

Satin crepes in dark shades, all 40 inches wide. We are showing a variety of these, for they are very popular. $4.00 and $4.50 per yard.

Silk and wool Canton crepe, 36 inches wide. This is a very adaptable material for smart frocks. Both light and dark shades. Priced at $2.75 per yard.

Pile Fabrics—
Silk chiffon velvets, 36 and 40 inches wide, the newest fabric of the winter season in navy, brown, taupe, sapphire, and black. $6.00 to $8.50 per yard.

Costume velvet, 32 inches wide, very closely woven, used very much for children's or misses' one-piece frocks. Specially priced at $3.00 per yard.

Duvetyn, in brilliant trimming, or sombre street shades, 36 inches wide. An excellent quality. $5.50 per yard.

Snow crepe, an imitation pile fabric with unusually durable wearing qualities. Holds its sheen. Priced specially at $6.00 a yard.

72 inch all linen damask, $6.50 quality, priced at $3.95 yard.

Mercerized damask—

Light weight cashmere, wool and silk hose, and wool hose, in black, navy, cordovan and heather colors, without and with clox. The hose for the well dressed man,—for the man who chooses economically as well as for appearance. We are showing quite a few styles but the universal favorite seems to be silk over wool, full fashioned, in brown and green, at $1.75 a pair.

Our stock of traveling bags and cases cannot be excelled. We have a bag for every need, at the most moderate of prices. Seeing is believing, so come in and see them for yourself.

Our service in showing is as courteous as in selling.—

JAPAN DOES NOT WANT WAR WITH UNITED STATES

SACRIFICES ALREADY MADE BY NATION TO AVOID WORLD TROUBLE

Attitude of America as Conference Opens Presents Grave Problem to Those Seeking Limitation of World Armament

(BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.)

WASHINGTON.—(Special)—With the opening of the Washington Conference we have passed from the time of speculation as to possible perils and dangers to the hour when it is necessary to examine the prospects of actual achievement. The dangers, in fact the one great danger is patent, the policy of the United States amounts to an invasion of a field in which Japan has felt herself paramount and must in any event result in the subtraction of advantage which the Japanese have come to regard as the man in the street thinks of the money he has deposited in his savings bank.

The first question that has to be asked, then, when one comes to the appraisal of the prospects for achievement must necessarily be: "Is Japan prepared to make concessions, large concessions. Is she within limits at least, ready to resign advantages in order to avoid an actual collision with the United States, preceded by hopeless isolation in the world?"

To this the answer is unmistakably in the affirmative. Japan has already made impressive sacrifices. The whole temper, spirit, tone of the Japanese representatives is in marked contrast to that tone which was discoverable in Paris. Japan is frank, apprehensive, she does not want a war with the United States. She does not want to be thrown back into Asia, separated from all the other great nations of the world, which would inevitably be the consequence of an actual rupture with the United States over any question which might be disposed of by a reasonable concession on her part.

Accepting the fact that Japan comes in a conciliatory spirit, what then is possible? First of all, the point of departure, the beginning of everything must be a definition of terms. America has elected to go to the Conference proclaiming two abstract principles, "the integrity of China and the Open Door." Both of them mean much in vague nomenclature, but neither means anything concretely until it is defined. Indeed the first definition must be as to China.

BOUNDARIES UNCERTAIN.

What for the purposes of the application of the principles of the Open Door and the integrity of China, is China, itself? Here is the whole crux of the matter. There must be a China; something less than that represented upon the maps vaguely as lying between Siberia and French Indo-China, something which the United States will recognize as the Chinese fact for purposes of discussion. There must be an area which Japan will concede is outside the regions in which she has already established an accomplished fact of political and economic interest.

If one could suppose, for example, that the United States and Japan could agree that for the purposes of discussion China should constitute that part of the geographical term which lies inside the Great Wall, then the gain would be enormous. This would mean that the United States was prepared to concede that when it talked about the Open Door and the integrity of China, it was referring to the Eighteen Provinces within the great wall. It would mean that the United States in fact if not in phrase, recognized the right of Japan to a special privilege and a special position in Manchuria and Mongolia. It would mean that Japan was prepared to accept the American view of equal opportunity in Manchuria and Mongolia. It would mean that Japan would agree to get out of Shantung. But it would also mean that we recognized Japanese rights and necessities in the matter of raw materials found in Manchuria.

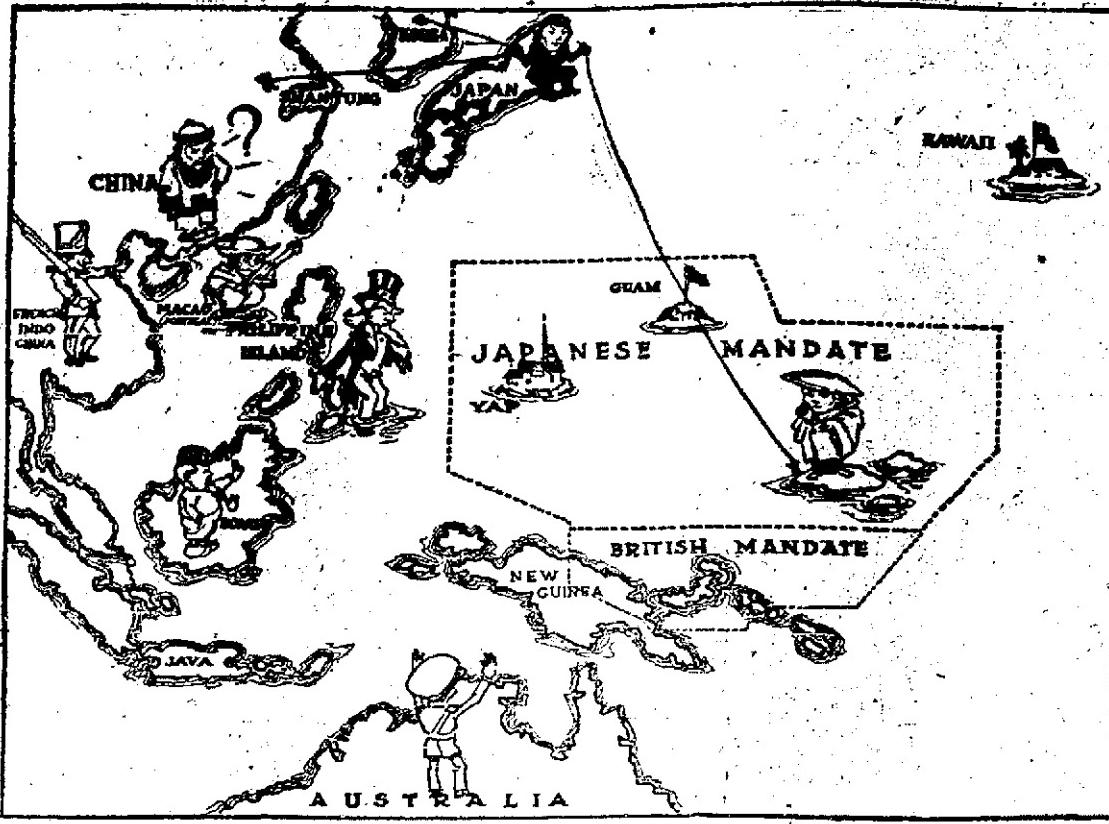

Unmistakably the first step in the negotiation must be the definition of China and I venture the prediction that the extreme of Japanese concession is discoverable in the formula that China consists of the territories south of the Great Wall. It is probably true that there will be necessary some effort to bring Japan to the point of agreeing to such a formula but at the least, it is certain that beyond this point she cannot be brought either by American argument or British pressure.

Will the United States accept the definition and consent to see Manchuria and Mongolia become Japanese "spheres of interest"? This is the first hurdle. We shall go nowhere until we get over that. No one will argue that such an agreement would be anything more nor less than a compromise of principle to avoid immediate failure of the conference and eventual war. But will the American people support an Administration which prefers a Japanese War to a surrender to Japan of Manchuria and Mongolia? Or to put the thing a little more exactly, since we confront an accomplished fact, will the American people back their Government in a war to expel the Japanese from Manchuria, where they are now established?

MUST AGREE ON POLICY.
Assume that Japan and the United States in private conversation in the opening days of the conference agree that China consists of the Eighteen Provinces within the Great Wall, what next? Obviously something must be done to create such a Chinese fact. It will not do to draw a line on the map and say, "South of this is China, north—not China." For if that were which exists in China today be not removed, if China be not helped back to some measure of order and unity, the power under heaven can prevent Japan and perhaps others beside Japan from going in. The doom of Morocco was always sealed, despite all the declarations of Algeciras, because there was lacking in the Sheraton Empire the elements out of which to reconstruct a stable state and there was no possibility of common action by Britain, France and Germany to restore Moroccan unity.

THE PROBLEMS IN THE PACIFIC

This map shows the Pacific problems the Washington conference has set out to solve. Dotted lines enclose the islands over which Japan was given a mandate at the Versailles peace meet. This gives Japan control of Yap, important cable station, and permits Japan to isolate the Philippines, American possession. Guam, another American possession, is shown surrounded by a network of Japanese islands. French Pacific interests are limited to Indo-China. Australia is menaced by Jap expansion. Holland has holdings in Borneo, Java and Sumatra. Portugal controls only the peninsula Macao, one and one-half miles long and one mile wide.

suming that some agreement is reached.

ENTANGLEMENT CERTAIN

Let us face the thing squarely. We are going to be entangled. We can't have the thing we want in the Far East without undertaking not only risks but responsibilities. We are going to seek no political or economic advantages of an exclusive sort in that territory. That would amount to giving meaning alike to the terms "Open Door" and "the integrity of China."

But the process does not stop with the self denying ordinances which are to follow a definition of the fact of China, these are in reality only negative steps. It remains for the United States, Japan and Britain in terms and for Britain and the United States in fact to undertake the gigantic task of making China a fact and not a phrase. If China is to decay as Turkey did, as Morocco did, nothing is going to keep the vultures off. But China cannot regain health alone—assuming that she can still be restored there will have to be some sort of a consortium, financial, at the least to aid in such a restoration.

This means a commitment. There is no dodging the fact, but it does not involve an obligation to defend frontiers nor to undertake political associations of an unlimited character.

It will not do to create a China, a phrase, a China diplomatically of even morally acknowledged, but lacking all material substance. The inescapable fact is that the United States, if it is to give reality to its principles of the Open Door and the integrity of China, must be prepared to assist in the restoration of a Chinese fact. If China cannot be restored, there will be no open door and no integrity. And to venture one step further in the citation of historical parallel, Japan will push on beyond the Great Wall as crossed the Muluya in Morocco.

BASIS OF DEALING

Until we have reached an agreement with Japan, with Britain participating, as to what is China, until the three powers most intimately concerned have committed themselves definitely to a policy of restraining from military, political or economic aggrandizement within that newly defined area, until the United States has recognized that it must associate itself with the British financially if not politically in the rehabilitation of the Chinese unit, as defined, everything else is of minor importance.

Now is such an agreement possible? I have said and I repeat that I believe Japan will accept the Great Wall frontier for China. My judgment is that British influence will press Japan that far and that British influence will not be exerted further, because British statesmanship recognizes that this is the extreme limit of possibility. The first and perhaps the greatest concession Mr. Hughes will have to make is right here. But if he declines to concede, then in my judgment the conference will fail, and fail with appalling consequences for all concerned.

Accepting the agreement on geography as assured, it does not seem to me that there can be much trouble in arriving at a self denying ordinance which even the United States Senate will endorse, for the United States Senate, even in its present mood, would hardly take exception to a statement that the United States had no territorial or political aspirations on Chinese territory nor any economic aspirations which it sought to translate into special privileges for its own citizens or interests.

If the Conference should stop here and address itself to the question of the limitation of armaments, on paper it would seem to be a success. But in fact, of course, it would be no more than a deliberate and indefensible deceiving of the peoples of all countries and of the American people beyond all others. We should still have to face the dangers of war with Japan over China, for the danger has its origin, not primarily in the present strength or temper of Japan, but in the present weakness and corruption of China. In the last analysis unless China is set on her feet, and held there for a time, at least, it will do no good solemnly to draw a line at the Great Wall and with equal gravity to join with Japan and Britain in signing a self denying ordinance.

The real test of statesmanship in Washington, it seems to me, is going to be had when it comes to finding a way in which the United States and Great Britain, having successfully persuaded Japan to resign her hopes within the Great Wall, can address themselves to the remaining task of finding a way to bring about even a little financial and political order in China. And right here is coming the real trouble, when the work of the Conference passes to the Senate for review, as at only by mutual concession. In last analysis it must be reached in the persuasion not by indictment, not by the assertion of principles, but by the accommodation of policies. If some arrangement were made restricting for the moment all naval programs not the least progress would be made toward reducing the danger of war. The danger of war arises from the fact that we, the United States have challenged the Japanese right to do certain things in the Far East and particularly in China. The hope of peace is to be found in the possibility that in conference, and with Great Britain present and assisting, a basis of settlement can be found by which the interests of Japan and the United States and the policies of these nations with respect of China can be reconciled.

The basis can, however, be arrived

COMMISSION WILL MEET JANUARY 2

First Assembly on That Date, For Organization

PRESIDENT WILL BE MAYOR

All Present Officials to Retire January 1

Considerable water will flow over the dam before the newly elected city commission. Harold Cunningham, John A. Hayley, Ellis E. Jones, Earl Rohn and H. L. Breckneridge, men settled down to business after January 1.

The commission is required, under the charter adopted by a large majority one year ago, to hold their initial meeting at 8 p. m. January 1, in the usual place for holding legislative meetings in the city. Translated in plain English, it means the council chamber, in W. High-st. will be the scene of the first official assembly of the five men chosen last Tuesday.

ORGANIZE JANUARY 2

The meeting will be for the purpose of organization. One of the first steps to be taken will be to elect one of their number president, and either as vice-president. They will hold office for two years. The president will preside at meetings of the commission and will have a vote, but no power to veto any measure.

On ceremonial occasions and at other times, the president of commission will act as official head of the city. Otherwise, he has no more power than any other member, save that during a public emergency he may take command of the police force and govern the city by proclamation. The remainder of the commission, however, have to decide that an emergency exists.

In case a selector cannot be made, the charter provides that the city solicitor will select one of the commission by lot.

After this necessary preliminary has been complied with, the next important, if not the most important task, will be to name the new city manager.

MANAGER IS BOSS

Vested with the power conferred upon him by the charter, thru the commission, the manager has the authority of a veritable king, with the provision, however, that he can be fired, whenever the commission decides to do so. The charter words it less harshly as follows. "Who shall hold office at the pleasure of the city commission."

The manager will be boss and the commission may fix his salary at whatever sum it deems sufficient.

Subject to the civil service provisions of the charter, he may appoint or remove all heads of departments, all subordinate officers and all employees at his discretion.

In fact, he is to run the city's business, under the guidance of the commission.

Besides appointing a manager, the commission will have to decide on a number of other appointments.

Some of the most lucrative positions to be filled are: Clerk of the commission, city solicitor, city auditor, or, city treasurer and purchasing agent. Salaries may be fixed at the discretion of the commission.

They may also apportion a number of boards and sub-commissions now in existence, or create any new ones deemed necessary.

From this it may be deduced that the commission is going to have not a few plums to hand out about January 1.

MAY MEET IN ADVANCE

It is improbable that the five members will meet officially and fix everything up in advance. Confirmation of the appointment can be made at the initial session and the new form of government will be ready to step off January 1.

One member has already expressed himself in favor of this plan, if an agreement can be reached.

Considerable deadwood and debris accumulated under the present administration must be cleared away before clear sailing can be had.

All appointive and administrative officials will be due to step out January 1.

Commencing with Mayor F. A. Burkhardt, the following will retire to private life on that date:

Safety Director Elmer McClain, Safety Inspector D. W. Dorris, City Engineer Vaughn Miller, City Clerk James I. Heffner, Solicitor H. E. Garling, Auditor E. O. Sellers and a number of experts who have been retained as advisers on municipal projects.

Burkhardt and McClain are rumored to be among possible applicants for the position of city manager.

LAND TRACTS SELL AT LESS THAN APPRAISAL

Sheriff Baxter sold two tracts of land Saturday at public auction. First is lot 851 Lima, which was appraised at $1,300 and sold for $867. Forty acres of land in Jackson, appraised at $5,000, brought $3,500.

The property was sold to satisfy the court action of Walter Schick against Jacob Schick, who was the purchaser of both tracts.

No bids were received for property in the case of the South Side Building and Loan Association against William Johnson and others.

Trial of John Houston, Forrest, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, will be called in common pleas court Monday.

Houston was indicted by the recent grand jury. He was arrested after one of the number of men with Houston is believed to have been injured in a gun battle staged by Clarence Fraunfelter, deputy sheriff.

Judge Becker and court of appeals placed little credence in the affidavit, apparently, to in both courts, application for new trials were de-

PURDUE ELEVEN CRUSHED BY ATTACK OF OHIO STATE

BOILERMAKERS ARE DAZZLED BY FAST BUCKEYE PLAYS

COLUMBUS.—Poking holes in Purdue's line and displaying its usual dazzling open field work, Ohio State won an easy victory 28 to 0 here today.

The Boilermakers were unable to even threaten the Buckeyes' goal, altho in the last half they pounded repeatedly at the Buckeye line and made good advances.

The playing field was a swamp where players performed weird acrobatics as they started to dash to receive a forward pass or punt and the scrum collapsed like churned mud continuously.

START OFF WITH RUSH

The Wabes men opened their attack with the first kickoff and a series of line backs and a forward pass scored a touchdown. The goal was started with a forward pass from Workman to Stuart, followed by a really open field run by Stuart to Purdue's 22 yard line.

Purley pushed holes in the line and Taylor followed thru repeatedly, finally carrying the ball three yards for a touchdown.

INCREASE LEAD

The second period increased the lead when Taylor and Weaver took the ball across.

In third quarter Purdue's line held and State was kept from further scoring by Cott, who came back in the last period with a brilliant 37-yard dash thru the Purdue team for a touchdown.

EVANS EXPLAINS WHY RUTH WINS IN LANDIS SCRAP

(By BILLY EVANS.)
Babe Ruth does not confine his home-run hitting to mere baseball. The Sultan of Swat packs a punch in other activities. I have in mind Ruth's recent skirmish with "His Honor," Judge Landis, doing the pitching. Technically, "Babe" lost the decision to the judges.

However, he scored a moral victory for a principle, that is sure to work to the advantage of the ball player. At the close of the world series, Judge Landis, doing the hurling for the magnates, served the following assortment of mixed English for the "Babe's" consideration.

"Both teams that contest in the world series are required to disband immediately after its close, and the members thereof are forbidden to participate as individuals or as a team in exhibition games during the year in which the world championship was decided."

If you were a great ball player like Babe, Ruth, possessing unusual ability as a batsman, that rule wouldn't make much of a hit with you. In the above clause you have the reason for the recent difference of opinion between Judge Landis on the side of the magnates and "Babe." Ruth of the ball player.

OFFERED $40,000.

Ruth received about $3200 for his losing share of the world series. If the Yankees had failed to win the American League pennant, Ruth would have received $40,000 for playing 25 exhibition games at the close of the American League season.

There was nothing of the gamble about the proposition, the money was to be placed to Ruth's credit in a bank before the start of the tour. When the Yankees won the right to play in the series, the offer still held good as far as the promoters were concerned, but the rules of baseball said nothing doing.

Babe Ruth is unquestionably the biggest man in baseball, from the playing standpoint. He resented the manifestly unfair rule. Anyone with a bit of common sense would take the same attitude, with a $37,000 loss staring him in the face. He decided to test the clause forbidding a world series player to barnstorm.

YANK OFFER BONUS.

The New York club, realizing Ruth's enormous value to the club and the American League, offered him a bonus of $25,000. I understand to cancel the tour. There was a principle at issue with Ruth and he turned down the offer. Ruth had no grievance against Judge Landis for his refusal to sanction the trip, but he seriously objected to the rule which the Judge was compelled to enforce.

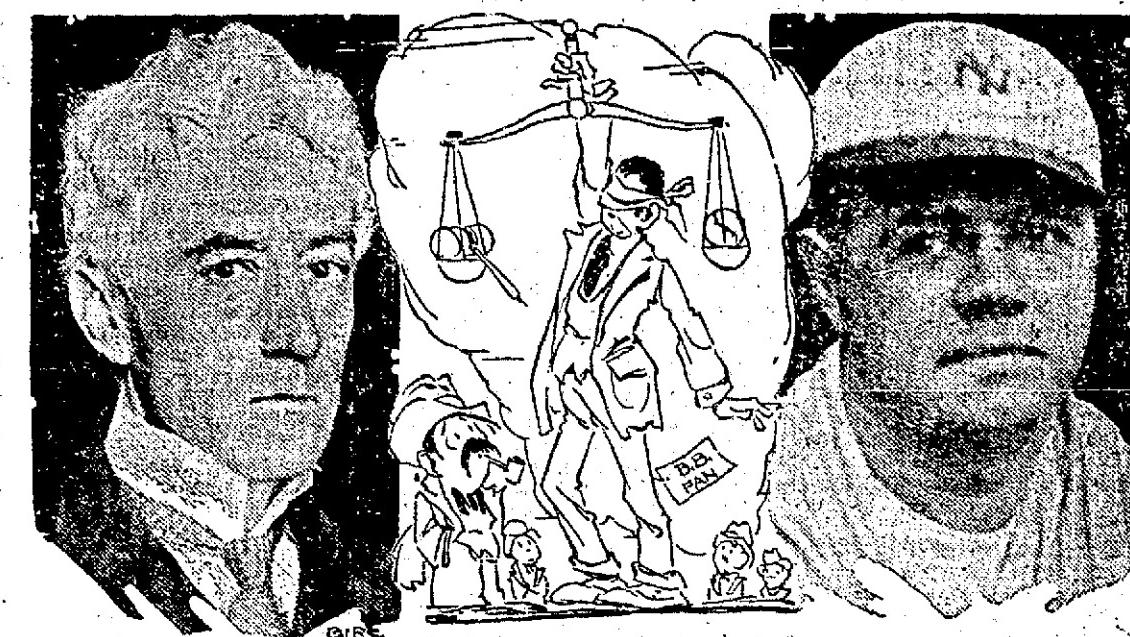

Ruth called off his exhibition tour after playing only four of the scheduled games. At first it might appear that Babe was "kayoyed" by the judge. As a matter of fact Ruth accomplished the very thing he set out to do. He secured world-wide publicity of a manifestly unfair rule. I am positive Judge Landis entertained that opinion. It is almost certain that the rule will be changed. However, it would probably have continued to exist had not Ruth had the courage of his convictions.

ORIGIN OF RULE.

The rule was inspired in 1910 because of the sorry showing made by the Philadelphia Athletics in Cuba. After having won the world championship, with what was admitted to be one of the great teams in the history of the game, the Athletics were beaten in six out of 10 games by the Cubans. The Athletics did not go to Cuba until seven weeks after the close of the season and were in poor physical condition. It was unimpressive in Cuba at the time. It was a decided reflection on the world series to have the winners trimmed in such a decisive manner. That trip caused the legislation against barnstorming.

It is apparent why the magnates do not desire a world champion team to barnstorm. They are absolutely right. However, to say that the individual cannot play in hardly fair. The test case made by Ruth is sure to bear fruit.

PROPER CARE OF STORAGE BATTERY

Greater Part of Sales is Really Educational in Nature

How about tracing out trouble in the electrical circuits on your car; or correcting the timing or the motor; or grinding the valves? Could you do these things if either were necessary in an emergency?

Most garage men, and they are in position to know, believe that you are to be congratulated on your knowledge if you are one of the old fashioned few who can do any of these things.

The long and short of it seems to be that the substantial construction of the car and its parts, and the frequency of service stations makes all this "do it yourself" knowledge superfluous. The up-to-date driver, instead of loading up his memory with a mass of details, remembers only a few items of routine care things that he must do to keep the car running smoothly and continuously. It is this sort of information that the industry has made popular.

Hardly a day goes by in any garage or service station without their noting the effect of the educational work that has been done by the accessory manufacturers and car builders during the past few years. The storage battery in particular has received an unusual amount of attention. The Willard Storage Battery Company has found that the greatest part of their sales and service work is really educational in nature, they must teach the battery user how to take care of his battery.

There can be little doubt that the car owner owes a good deal of his satisfaction to the efforts of the manufacturer and his representatives who have taught him what to do to keep each part of his car in prime condition.

Irregular firing of the engine may be due to dirt or water in the gasoline system.

Five different kinds of taxes are imposed on automobile owners in many states.

A higher grade of fuel is sold this year than last, says the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

"DAYTON" TIRE DEALER TALKS ABOUT MILEAGE

"I like to ask: my prospective customers how far their tire dollars travel," says Henry Ebling, local Dayton Tire Dealer. "That, to my mind, is the real measure of service. A man invests so many dollars in a tire. In other words, he is putting so many dollars onto the rim of his wheel and his satisfaction is going to be determined by how far those dollars travel."

I ask the people who use Dayton Tires to measure their service by the dollar scale. I ask them to divide the total mileage secured by the Dayton Tire by the number of dollars that it costs, so he will know just how far every one of their tire dollars is traveling. That after all, is the real test of tire service, and when all motorists insist on making that test with their tires, I know that all the manufacturer will be forced to give the most they can for the money.

"Of course there's the added value in a good tire of getting not merely high mileage, but the assurance that the owner will have very little tire trouble, while the mileage is being devolved.

HOW BUICK MOTOR CARS ARE SERVING

The extreme satisfaction which the travelers for the Hardesty Manufacturing Company of Denver, Colorado, find in their Buicks is a testimonial which unquestionably stamps the Buick as supreme in sturdiness and serviceability.

The Hardesty Manufacturing Company operate fourteen Buicks—one a seven-passenger, one a roadster and two five-passenger cars. These are used in the states of Montana, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico and Colorado. Each of the cars is run about 15,000 miles a year. The company has been using Buicks for the past seven years, and is still continuing to buy them. They are operated the year round, in all kinds of weather, and the drivers are very satisfied over their performance.

The Hardesty Manufacturing Company manufactures flumes, irrigation piping, culverts, storage tanks, sheep dipping troughs, water troughs, etc., and these travelers must call upon people in all sorts of isolated places.

Salesmen such as these are, to my mind, at real pioneers of civilization. They fight their way up to the new mines, which open way up near the summit of some mountain, possibly ten, eleven or twelve thousand feet up. Previous to the advent of the automobile, these salesmen had to be packed up on pack trains. Now, however, when a mine is found to be producing metal in paying quantities, it is decided to exploit the field. The mining company finds it necessary that a highway be built which can be kept up the year round.

The Hardesty salesman gets on the job, then drives his Buick over the most miserable piece of mountain road imaginable, and works with the mining engineers, figuring the location of the road, the grade of the road, the culverts needed, size, etc.

Because Buick has stood the test and has given satisfaction where mishaps such as breakdowns in the mountains, or on the desert, might mean death, it has become popular with the class of men that are called upon to face these situations so that civilization can keep moving in these out-of-the-way places.

It is a tribute to Buick that men such as these have chosen it as their method of conveyance. Beauty of design, alone, does not count with men of this type. Like themselves, they seek power, endurance and reliability. In all they gather about them, they are real men, facing hardships and perils almost continually, and they must have real friends! Their safety often depends upon the faithfulness of their friends, animate or inanimate. That which is weak and unreliable they cast from them, for they cannot take a chance.

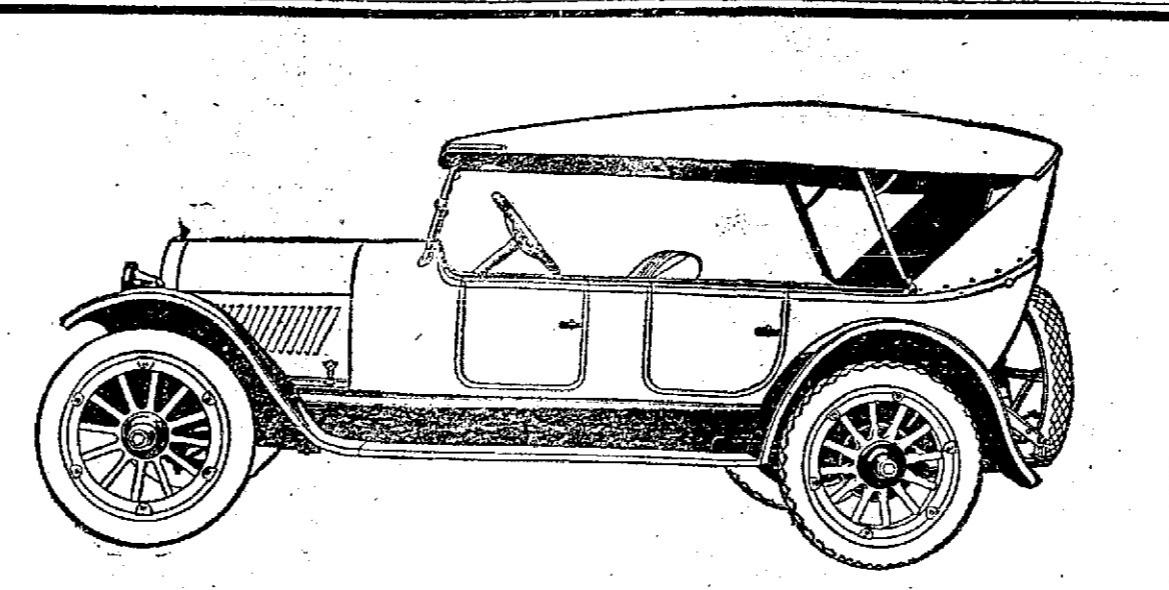

Buick has stood the test and has proven itself a worthy friend of these worth men.

The Reo touring car was entered in the $1,000 to $2,000 class, and the new Sedan was entered in the $2,000 to $3,000 class. The Reo sedan took first prize and the new Reo light seven outranked everything in its class. The automobile fashion parade and contest were features of the wheat show in Wichita. More than one hundred cars of different makes were entered in the show.

KING WINTER IS STARTING UPON
HIS LONG REIGN

Advent of Colder Weather, Which Drives Mankind Indoors, Marks the Turning Point for a Resumption of the Pleasures of the Social Whirl

(By ROSEMARY CHRISTEN)

KING WINTER has returned to occupy his throne once again. Of course, the prevailing weather is not nearly as cold and bitter and stormy as that period when Old Boreas is at the height of his glory, but, at least, a very pronounced suggestion of the biting and exhilarating weather which he sends forth during his reign, has been very noticeable during the past week. Already some few Limaites have departed for the southland, while others are busily engaged planning and preparing for their departure to the delightful winter resorts of California and Florida.

Activities during the closing week were very numerous, more marked possibly in clubdom than in the strictly social realm.

Members of the College Woman's Club enjoyed luncheon and an exceedingly profitable lecture at the Hotel Argonne, Saturday. Dr. T. G. Devall, professor of psychology at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, was the speaker, having for his subject, "Recent Studies in Intelligence."

Saturday an open meeting of the City Federation of Women's clubs was held in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce. Miss Anne B. Johnson, of Springfield, past state federation president, was the speaker of the afternoon. She had for her interesting subject, "The Relation of the Club Woman to the Community."

One of the most elaborate and delightful affairs for many a day was the handsomely appointed 5 o'clock tea given at the Elks' Home Thursday, with Mrs. William L. Russell and Mrs. Olen E. Chenoweth as hostesses. Over 200 guests were received in the ball room, which was artistically adorned for the occasion.

Domestic Science club will meet Tuesday with Mrs. A. O. Hotchkiss; Members will respond to roll call with Thanksgiving quotations. A Thanksgiving story will be given by Mrs. D. C. Byrd after which Thanksgiving songs which will be sung by the entire club. A social hour will follow.

Roland Heller of W. Wayne-st., entertained with a dinner at the Hotel Argonne, Friday evening in celebration of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Heller. The table was prettily decorated for the occasion, covers being laid for Mr. and Mrs. Heller, Bernard Heller, David Irwin and Roland Heller.

Excelsior Club will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Clay Cormean, of 449 W. McKibben-st.

GIRLS, 'VAMP' POSE HURTS YOUR BACKS

Here are three entries in Boston's "bare back" contest. The one at left shows the broad type of back.

BOSTON — (Special) — Girls, cut the "baby vamp" pose and the fashionable slump. If you don't they'll rob you of health and beauty and—a shapely back.

That's what Dr. R. Kendrick Smith says. He's a leading osteopath and a director of the National League for the Prevention of Spinal Curvature.

Right now Smith is putting on a nation-wide "bare back" contest to find the woman with the most perfect back in America. And, more important to him, he'll have the chance to study healthy backs and prove osteopathic doctrines now pooh-poohed by the older schools of medicine.

Here are some back facts from Dr. Smith:

"If a woman slouches in her chair and sits on that portion of her back between her shoulder blades and the base of her spine, she's courtting trouble. Most girls sit that way."

And most women suffer from spine defects—even some with beautiful backs.

"Actresses don't have the best backs, as the public seems to think. That's because they dance on high heels and affect a shy and drooping pose."

"Instead, the best backs belong to college girls. Why? Because they exercise. And because they're independent enough to have high heels."

Dr. Smith's conclusions are the result of a careful examination of hundreds of backs already entered in the contest. They belong to women of all ages—professional models, actresses, athletic girls and just everyday girls.

Mrs. J. W. Blackburn, of 349 W. Spring-st., will entertain the members of the Koneta Circle, Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beam, of W. High-st., are home from their summer sojourn on the coast of Maine.

Matron's society of Market-st. Presbyterian church was pleasantly entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. R. Thomas, of State-st. Assisting the hostess were Mrs. D. H. Sullivan, Mrs. W. J. Galvin, Mrs. C. L. Yakey, Mrs. W. L. Neville, Mrs. W. G. Graham, Mrs. I. C. Dye and Mrs. R. B. Tolam. Mrs. Effie Evans sang "A Memory" by Rosalind Park and "The Blue Bell" by MacDowell. Mrs. Harry Fenton sang "Ecstasy" by Logan and Miss Mary K. Roby played "Lento" by Cyril Scott.

Woman's Missionary society of the First Congregational church will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. L. Bradshaw, of 948 Leland-av.

Friday evening a Thanksgiving play with folk dances of Harvest Home type will be enjoyed by the young people at South high school under the direction of Miss Ruth Roby.

Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Episcopal church will meet in the parish house, Thursday afternoon.

Minds of Women Occupied by the Seasonal Event That Ushers In Real Winter Condition—Joint Meeting of Women's Clubs a Monday Event

KDEN interest in Thanksgiving and the social affairs in connection with this day are beginning to occupy the minds of women. Only a very few of the young school set will be able to return home for this holiday, but social functions are being planned for those who will be fortunate enough to cast aside all thoughts of studies for a short period and enjoy a brief stay with relatives and friends at home.

Women are once again reviving their social amenities and thus far predictions indicate a season of much activity.

Members of the Lotus, Arbutus, Delphian and Woman's clubs will enjoy a joint meeting at the home of Mrs. M. S. Thompson, W. Market-st., Monday afternoon. Speaker of the afternoon will be Mrs. Carrie B. Showell, of Springfield. Mrs. Showell has spoken in this city on several previous occasions. At the meeting Monday the members of the Lotus club will be hostesses. Officers of the club are: Mrs. O. B. Selfridge, president; Mrs. Chester A. Black, vice president; Mrs. W. J. Galvin, secretary, and Mrs. T. F. Brady, treasurer.

Gamma Beta sorority was entertained by Misses Winifred Berryman and Leah Miller at the home of Miss Miller, W. Spring-st., Friday. The evening was enjoyed in dancing and contests, in which Miss Errable Ferguson and Mrs. Cleveenger were successful. At a late hour the guests were invited into the dining room, where a delicious lunch was served. Red, white and blue were artistically used in the decorations and thusly cut the luncheon.

Those present included Misses Doris Ballinger, Errable Ferguson, Lova Jacobs, Opal Dixon, Florence Jones, Bessie Ries, Winifred Berryman, Leah Miller and Mrs. Cleveenger. Guests were Misses Little Wolford, Lorene Almendinger and Mary Zurcher.

Members of the T. and T. club will be entertained at dinner Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Cunningham, of Bluffton. Subject of the evening's program will be "American Life." Responses to roll call will be the "City of My Birth." Mrs. J. W. Roby will have a paper on the subject, "As Our English Cousins See Us," while Mrs. T. J. Jacobs will have a paper on "The Other Side of Main Street." Mrs. Roby will sing a group of songs written by America composers.

Miss Doris Newell, of S. Collett-st., and Miss Catherine Canavan, of N. Baxter-st., are week-end guests of Miss Catherine Burba of Dayton. Miss Canavan is also visiting with her brother, Leonard Canavan, a student at the Dayton University.

Mrs. G. J. Duffy and son, Bernard of Elmwood-pl., who were called to St. Thomas, Canada, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Duffy's sister, will return Sunday to this city.

Mrs. George P. Conner, of W. High-st., returned Saturday from a week's stay with her daughter, Mrs. Walter Yehley, of Delaware.

Mrs. Carl Mast, of Beloitoina, has extended the hospitality of her home to the members of the Martha Washington club, Wednesday. A patriotic color scheme was artistically carried out thru the rooms.

Officers were elected, the following being chosen: Mrs. Rosalie Stapleton, president; Mrs. M. S. Allen, secretary; Mrs. J. W. Brown, treasurer and Mrs. G. W. Bliner, chairman of the program committee. In a clever contest, Mrs. Stapleton was successful among the members and Miss Olive Lake of Salt Lake City among the guests. Miss Lake gave a very interesting talk in connection with the welfare work, which is being accomplished in Salt Lake City. A splendid musical program was presented by Misses Phyllis Mast, Florence Roush and Dorothy Allen, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Stapleton.

Mrs. Arthur Daniels, of N. Washington-st., was hostess to a group of friends with an enjoyable afternoon of bridge, Friday. A pleasing effect was added by yellow chrysanthemums, which were effectively arranged throughout the rooms. At the conclusion of the play, with Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. E. C. Yingling holding high scores, the hostess served a dainty luncheon.

Those enjoying the affair included Mrs. Robert Stein, Mrs. B. E. Rosenbaum, Mrs. H. D. Rohr, Mrs. Frank Wallace, Mrs. C. E. Umbaugh, Mrs. Herbert A. Thomas, Mrs. Fred Willower, Mrs. G. S. ### "Inequalities Are Greatest In Louisiana," Asserts Leader

By MRS. JOHN D. WILKINSON
Chairman Louisiana Branch National Woman's Party.

BATON ROUGE, La. — (Special) — There is only one state in the union where women have the same political, legal and civic rights as men. This state is Wisconsin, the first in the union to ratify the nineteenth amendment, which granted suffrage to women, and which on June 1, 1921, took the initiative in passing the woman's bill of right by which women are made equal with men under the law.

In every other state, discriminations against women exist, the inequalities of the laws of Louisiana being, in this regard, most marked and excessive.

Briefly summarized, women in Louisiana have not the same rights, privileges and immunities under the law as men with respect to the following:

Freedom of contract; the administration, investment and enjoyment of community property; choice of domicile and residence; acquiring, controlling, holding and conveying property; making and receiving donations; care and custody of children and control of earnings and services of such children; immunities and penalties for sex offenses; quarantine examination and treatment of diseases.

HITS MARRIED WOMEN

One article of the revised civic code states: "All persons have the capacity to contract, except those whose incapacity is specially declared by law. These are persons of insane minds, those who are interdicted, minors and married women."

Mrs. Raymond Ward, of N. Metcalf-st., entertained with a happy gathering Saturday afternoon in celebration of the 12th birthday anniversary of her daughter, Madeline.

Those present included Misses Abigail Parish, Ruth Prout, Madeline Ruff, Ruth and Lois Keller, Mary Margaret and Rose Elizabeth Blair, Mary Gertrude Corcoran, Mildred and Helen Jenkins, Marjorie and Jean Sprague and Madeline and Evelyn Ward.

It would seem that women, no matter how intelligent and capable, become helpless and ignorant upon marriage.

Another article reads: "A married woman has no other domicile than that of her husband," and another, "The wife is bound to live with her husband and to follow him wherever he chooses to reside."

The court has ruled that, even when the marriage contract the wife has provided the domicile and the husband accepts it, and he removes to a distant place, establishing a residence at an hotel or boarding house, such a residence becomes the legal domicile of the wife, so she may never have entered it or even be aware of her husband's whereabouts.

With regard to the guardianship of children, the inequalities of the law are most pronounced. In the code "A child remains under the authority of his father and mother until his majority or emancipation.

In case of difference between the parents, the authority of the father prevails."

There are no laws upon our statute books that so clearly exemplify the disabilities and discriminations against women as those affecting the community property—the property which has been acquired after marriage by the joint efforts of both husband and wife.

HUSBAND MASTER

The revised code declares: "The husband is the head and master of the community gains; he administers its effects, disposes of the revenues which they produce, and may alienate them by an onerous title without the consent or permission of his wife."

Until the husband and wife are regarded as equal partners, in the administration, disposition and alienation of community property, with the signatures of both attached to the sale of such property then men and women are not equals.

As a remedy for these and all other injustices with regard to women at present existing in the laws of Louisiana, the Louisiana branch of the National Woman's party will ask the Legislature next spring to pass a blanket bill under which women shall have the same rights, immunities and privileges as men.

It is the desire of the National Woman's party to have this bill introduced in the next session of the Legislature.

RECIPE

1 potato, 2 1/2 cups boiling water, 2 tablespoons lard, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 1/2 yeast cake, (compressed), 1 1/2 cup lukewarm water, 5 cups sifted flour.

UTENSILS

A stew pan, sieve, small mixing bowl, large mixing bowl, bread bowl or big dish pan, kept for the purpose or a bread mixer, cover for bowl or pan, square of cloth kept for a bread cloth, 2 brick-shaped bread pans for baking, molding board, measuring cup, tablespoon, big kitchen spoon.

METHOD

Wash potato carefully but do not pare. Cut in slices and put in stew pan with boiling water. Cook until potato is tender. Pour the whole into a sieve placed over a bowl. Rub potato thru sieve.

Sift 1 cup of flour into a mixing bowl. Beat the scalding potato mixture into the flour. Let cool to luke warm temperature and add the yeast cake dissolved in luke warm water.

Mix thoroughly, cover with a big plate and put in a warm place to stand over night.

In the morning put five cups of flour in the bread bowl or pan. With big spoon work the flour up the sides of the pan in such a way that the pan is lined with flour. Mix sugar and salt and soften lard. Add these to the yeast mixture.

The yeast should be light and foamy in the morning. Beating the sugar, salt and lard into it will break the lightness. Pour the yeast mixture into the flour lined bread pan and with a big spoon beat the flour evenly into the yeast.

When the mixture becomes too stiff to work with the spoon, mix with your hands. Knead in all the flour in the pan. Then turn onto a floured moulding board and knead until the dough is smooth and springy to touch. There should be little bubbles just under the surface of the dough and when the dough is folded over and pressed with the palms of the hands it should snap or crack slightly.

It will take about half an hour to knead the dough thoroughly. Return to the pan, cover with a cloth and then with a big cover and put in a warm place to rise. Let rise to double the bulk of the dough. The temperature should be about 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

It will take about an hour and a half for the dough to rise. When light cut off enough dough to make a loaf of bread. In this recipe divide it in half.

Knead smooth on the board and work into a shape that will half fill the pan in which the bread is to be baked. Cover with a cloth and let rise again to double its bulk. Bake in a hot oven. The loaf should continue rising for the first fifteen minutes after being put in the oven should brown during the next thirty and finish baking in the next fifteen.

The heat should be reduced during the last fifteen minutes. As soon as bread is taken from the oven it should be removed from the pans and put on a wire rack to cool.

SUSIE SMART SAYS

I AM the mother of a daughter 16 years old. She is our only child. Always we have spoiled her and given her everything. Now we realize what a great mistake we have been making. Now my husband has had a salary cut and we are not able to buy clothes for our daughter. All she does now is complain. She says she cannot have a good time when she does not have nice clothes like the other girls. Her clothes are not very nice, but she feels she must have the very best at the time. AN UNHAPPY MOTHER

FEEL yourselves very fortunate in discovering your daughter's selfish spirit before it is too late. Perhaps she will never be able to entirely overcome this trait, but at least, you can try to rectify your mistake. With tact and care on the part of yourself and your husband, you can soon make your daughter realize that she should ask less of you and her father and practice giving more.

She is mistaken that she must have everything just like the other girls, in order to enjoy a good time. Try to explain to her that neat, clean and stylish clothes may be just as becoming as expensive ones. She may look fully as attractive in a plain attire as some other girl in an extreme style. She is old enough to realize that you and her father are making sacrifices for her and that she in turn should show her gratitude and appreciation.

DEAR MISS SMART:
(1) Am I too young to go occasionally to a boy's room? (2) What is the proper way to introduce a boy and girl? (3) Which shall be worn this winter, mink or oxford? If oxford, with cravat or bow tie? (4) Is it better for a boy to have a boy say anything about me that he doesn't like, his fights with them. Sometimes he hurts them is it better for me to tell him I am not (5) In my writing good for a girl of my age?

FRITZIE
(1) Perhaps not, but don't let it happen too frequently. You really are too young. (2) Present the boy to the girl. (3) Oxford with woolen stockings seem to be almost as popular this year as last. Many girls and women are wearing them at this time. (4) Apparently he would be better, however, if he would modify his tactics to a certain extent by resorting to words instead of depending upon his fists. (5) Quite good.

DEAR MISS SMART:
(1) Can you tell me how to clean a rain coat?

C. W.
(1) Sending it to a dry cleaner would probably be the most satisfactory plan.

DEAR MISS SMART:
I am a young woman 22 years of age and am an ordinary-looking girl. One is very nice looking and has lots of money, while the other is fat, moderate circumstances. I care more for the looks of the girl, but I love him for himself, not for anything else. What would you advise to me?

BILLIE
That is a question which your heart must decide for you. There is a theory, which, perhaps, would apply well in your case. It is something to this effect—that starvation with one's beloved insured greater happiness than feasting with a millionaire one dislikes and scorns.

SOAP
Give the soap time to harden before you use it. It will last twice as long.

MOP STICK
Cut the old mop stick off at a convenient place, bind a number of old black stockings on and use it to clean your stove.

DUST THEM
A soft piece of old silk should be kept at hand for use in dusting your hat. Quilt and ostrich should be gently dusted after each wear.

YEAST
Sift 1 cup of flour into a mixing bowl. Beat the scalding potato mixture into the flour. Let cool to luke warm temperature and add the yeast cake dissolved in luke warm water.

MONDAY AT BUEHLER'S
20 Public Square, fresh Sausage—our own make, lb 16¢; fresh Pork Shoulder Ribs, lb 6¢; fresh Liver sliced, lb 6¢.

SEEDS
Save all of the dry sunflower seeds. Your chickens or parrot will delight in them.

DELICIOUS
The next time you serve baked apples try serving honey with them. You'll like it.

JUST THINK OF IT!
Chiropractic has lived 26 years, has brought relief to millions of sufferers without a drop of medicine, or the use of a knife and has overcome prejudice and sentiment.

You may be thankful that you live in a day and age when you can have the advantages of this modern science.

My spinal adjustments are given in the latest and most skillful manner and an analysis of your case will be honestly given.

OHIO FEDERATION NEWS

"By Mrs. George Elliott McCormick"
Voicing her appreciation of the work of the clubs in the state federation, chairman Mrs. Cornelius S. Scholer, Cleveland, newly-elected president of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, in her first official message to club women of the state says:

"I wish to speak of the valuable legacy left me by my predecessors in the corps of capable chairmen of the standing committees of the Ohio federation. Some of them seemed to give the impression that these were air final reports, but for the benefit of those who may not know I want to explain that the standing committees of the General federation consist of state chairmen of the corresponding committees of the state federation and so their term of office does not expire until the close of the next biennial of the General federation. We can readily understand what chaos there would be in the committees of the General federation if their personnel were constantly changing with each state's election. So, we are to have another club year of active service by our chairmen, assisted by the members of their respective committees, until June, 1922."

Mrs. Scholer's new address is No. 1558 E. Seventy-first-st., Cleveland.

DISTRICT MEETINGS

District meetings will be held in the spring and again next fall when they will take the place of the regular state convention. Every fall thereafter, or until the time of the district conventions may be changed again, they will be conducted probably some time in November after the election.

KEEPING IN MIND

Remembering the warning sounded by Mrs. Scholer in her inaugural address as state president, Ohio federation members must keep their organizations absolutely non-partisan if they would wield the greatest power for good.

It is possible that a bill may from time to time be introduced thru a Republican or a Democrat, but this will be done only because the individual in the particular case may be more powerful. However, it is Mrs. Scholer's announced purpose more particularly to emphasize the development of the literary and musical made clear.

Mrs. Hopley's position is thus clearly defined.

Friday evening Mrs. Richard Lane, of E. McKibben-st., received a group of friends at an enjoyable affair at her home. # COMEDY-DRAMAS, TWO OF THEM, AT FAUROT OPERA HOUSE THIS WEEK

"SMOOTH AS SILK" COMING

"Cornered," With Madge Kennedy is Special Attraction for Matinee and Night

Willard Mack's Famous Play to Appear in Lima During the Present Week

TWO highly successful comedy-dramas are booked for appearance here during the forthcoming week at the Faurot Opera House. The first, scheduled for one performance on Thursday night, is Willard Mack's famous "Smooth as Silk," with Taylor Holmes in the leading role.

"Cornered," with Madge Kennedy, is the special attraction at the Faurot next Saturday, matinee and night. These two legitimate productions are among the most notable brought here for some time.

Not so long ago the stage heroine was pretty sure of getting a husband. Nowadays she gets left. Just before the fall of the final curtain she is hopeful, not to say expectant, only to have the man walk out on her.

Matrimony is no longer assured on the stage, monotonously true to the endearing cliché, "the happy ending" seems well on its way to storehouse. The explanation of this change is not to be found in the greed of the authors who do not hesitate to leave lovely heroines bewept their fate in tear-stained plays.

The risk was taken a number of years ago by Eugene Walter with "The Easiest Way," but like the English version of "Iris," he could send his audience home with the virtuous feeling that the woman in the case got what she deserved. "Rats," the gallery patrons exclaim. Drama is drama whether the heroine is good or bad. In fact, the bad people in a play are always far more interesting than the good ones.

However, Willard Mack, author of "Smooth as Silk" coming to the Faurot next Thursday night has rung the alarm clock of melodrama with an unhappy ending. Of course, with Taylor Holmes in the play, any play has an unhappy ending, for who wouldn't like to see the one-time star of "Brother Bear" go on acting forever? Willard Mack, like the performing acrobats, has stretched a not to save himself and his plays from disaster. Tumbling into the net with a new twist at the finish of his story he has made a great play.

At the last moment in "Smooth as Silk" he has Mr. Holmes leave a perfectly good girl crying her eyes out and proclaiming her undying love. Girls, slim or plump, may be built that way—but plays will be plays. A melodramatic hero may be able to carry everything or everybody before him and make a "grand exit"—but so far as is known this is the first time that Willard Mack either as a playwright or an actor has refused to marry anybody. He played the star part for a brief spell before Mr. Holmes succeeded him in New York. To be sure Mr. Holmes at the silken crook lets the girl down easy—he just couldn't be harsh.

"Cornered," With Madge Kennedy

Madge Kennedy, who is appearing under the managerial direction of Henry W. Savage, will play an engagement at the Faurot Opera House Saturday afternoon and night in the comedy drama "Cornered." Miss Kennedy, former star of the farces "Twin Beds" and "Fair and Warmer" left the stage at the height of her popularity as a comedienne about three years ago to make a series of motion pictures for the Goldwyn Company. In picture work she was unusually successful, her beauty, delicate charm and winning personality immediately endearing her to an army of dyed-in-the-wool picture enthusiasts. So popular was she in fact, that her year's contract with the corporation was extended to three. At the expiration of her studio work last fall, Miss Kennedy returned to New York and commenced rehearsals in "Cornered."

As the shop girl, she gives a not too sordid picture of a working girl's struggle for existence. A slangy, slightly hardened, sharp-eyed type of sales girl, minus the bobbed hair she is, and the characterization as done by Miss Kennedy is as refreshing as it is clever. As Margaret Waring, the aristocrat, the other side is shown; wealth, refinement, luxury, beautiful clothes and jewels making a gorgeous setting which reflects the radiance of her brilliant acting. Two distinct characters and a sharp contrast, requiring thespic school and talents of a high order, but to the credit of Madge Kennedy it can be said she is equal in every way to the heavy demands.

The Sigma's Pictures

"Devotion," featuring Miss Hazel Dawn, is announced as the special attraction today and for four days at the Sigma theatre. Miss Dawn, before her entrance into the movies, was a popular stage player. The supporting cast, headed by E. K. Lincoln, himself a star of renown, is a remarkable combination of historic talent. Beautiful settings, unusual light effects, and perfect photography characterize the three six reels in which the story is unfolded.

"Devotion" is a story that analyzes the most human of all human devotions—love—and is the story of three women. One who married for love, her sister who married for wealth and position alone, and an other who thru force of circumstances was placed in a terrible position. The woman who married for wealth and everything she wanted except happiness. Her sister who married for love found happiness, altho for a time it was alloyed with the shadows of mistrust and suspicion. The other woman suffered and endured the very depths of sorrow until she achieved the reward of devotion. How the lives of these three seekers of happiness were twisted by fate until the skein was untangled is shown in a series of scenes and situations that runs the entire scale of human emotions.

The presentation of "Devotion" will touch a responsive chord in the hearts of all who witness this powerful photoplay, especially women whose scenes are laid in New York at the present day.

In addition to the feature attraction, the Sigma's Sunday program includes a new comedy and late Fox News reel.

The Lyric's Pictures

ELL SHIPMAN, as star, author and director of a tremendous photoplay, "The Girl From God's Country" offers one of the most attractive plays of the season, the picture, a thrilling melodrama, opens a few day engagement today at the Lyric theatre.

In "The Girl From God's Country" Miss Shipman has a dual role, that of Neeka, the outdoor girl, and Marlon Carslake, the daughter of a millionaire.

The story deals with a sensational trans-Pacific airplane flight planned by Carslake, known to the world as the wizard of the air. In reality however, his inventions have been made by a "crazed" inventor living in a lonely hut in the sand dunes. This inventor provides solidified gasoline for the flight. Carslake's daughter, Marlon, is angered at her father's adoption of Neeka, a girl of the North Woods, not realizing that Neeka is her real sister and the daughter of Carslake.

Otto Kraus, owner of the rival plane, the K-12, makes an effort to steal the formula. He accepts a position as butler in the Carslake mansion and there tricks Neeka into securing the formula. When Neeka realizes that she has turned traitor to her own father, she follows Kraus in another plane. A thrilling battle in mid-air follows, in which Neeka is saved by a parachute drop.

The final of the story is laid in Japan, amid the cherry blossoms. Edward Burns, Al W. Wilson and George Berrell have the supporting roles. A number of dogs, bears and other animals are used to advantage in Miss Shipman's film; the scenes are beautiful throughout, and there's a real thrill furnished every minute. The rest of the story is filled

The Majestic's Pictures

WILLAGE REID has injected his breezy personality into another screen romantic comedy with the usual pleasing results. This time it is "Hawthorne of the U.S.A.", adapted from the stage play in which Douglas Fairbanks starred on Broadway. The picture is being shown today and Monday at the Majestic theatre.

In his latest story, Wally and Harrison Ford are cast as two law clerks who are making an economical tour of Europe in a rented automobile. Down to their last five francs, Wally risks it all at Monte Carlo and breaks the bank. Intending to visit Venice with the wealth, they are misdirected to the little kingdom of Bohemia. Here Wally follows his breeze-blown cap over a wall—and meets the princess. The rest of the story is filled

GAY LIFE REVELATIONS BY A PARIS GUIDE

Naughtiness Especially Staged For Tourists, Says American Girl Who Has Piloted Many Sight-Seeing Tours

Mistinguette Is Gaby Deslys' Successor; The Boulevard Flirts—Oscar Wilde's Old Cafe Now Statesmen's Rendezvous—Duval, the Picturesque King of the Boulevards; How to Get a Good Table at Maxim's; What Americans Like to See In Paris

Editor's Note—In the first installment of "The Confessions of a Paris Guide," which appeared in The News last Sunday, Mary Symons, an American girl, who began the fascinating story of her adventures in the gay French capital as a professional guide to curious tourists. After telling how straitlaced circumstances and a chance meeting with an American tourist party turned her course into this novel profession, Miss Symons described her tours of the Latin Quarter and also explained how the professional guides receive fees from gay cafes and cabarets for the patronage they bring in. Her exposé of the way foreign tourists act and are treated in Paris is continued in the following article.

HOW PARIS STAGES HER GAYETY

HE is quite the most fascinating, popular person in Paris—this queen of the song and dance, Mistinguette. Every where she is admitted to be the successor of the gay, seductive Gaby Deslys, whose charm, as all the world knows, wrecked the reign of ex-King Manuel of Portugal.

The admirers of Mistinguette are legion. Every American tourist I have guided wants to meet her. Men lose their hearts—and heads—to her at sight. Yet Mistinguette, the girl of the marvelous figure and of the thousand beautiful gowns, was once a singer in a cheap music hall on the boulevards.

I have always had a terribly hard time to keep my parties together when I have met and pointed out Mistinguette on the boulevards. For it is on the boulevards that sooner or later you meet the sensational folks of the gay city.

The Boulevard Flirts

I have often been asked how I plan tours for the Paris boulevards and which are the most fascinating cafes. Well, the Olympia is the most notorious place on the boulevards. It is a music hall, where you can see vaudeville acts of acrobats, trained animals, trick bicyclists and similar novelties, which would be bliss in any one-horse town in the States. And in the cellar below is a huge dance hall. Skip the music hall, but go into the dance hall any afternoon after 5 or any evening after theatre. The dance hall is in truth a public market place. Frankly, it makes me sick every time I go there, so I usually send the slumming "parties in alone."

The French boulevard flirt is always angling for an American man; he is rich and generous! She studies and copies the things he admires and frequents the places he prefers. That is why there are always so many attractive girls at the cafe de la Paix. A middle-Western American, who had made several millions in real estate, was so enchanted by the beauty of the pretty girls sitting at the tables in the cafe de la Paix one night I brought him there that he couldn't decide which one he thought most beautiful.

I hardly ever take any of my parties along the Grands Boulevards at night except to Maxim's or slumming down in the Olympia Dance Hall. The time for the boulevards is during the afternoon at tea time, and at aperitif or cocktail hour. If you are a tourist you will sit at one of the sidewalk tables at the Cafe de la Paix, order a cocktail, watch the other tourists about you, glance occasionally at the passers-by and you will think you have seen the Boulevard life.

If you are a tourist under my care however, you will sit at the Cafe de la Paix for about ten minutes only (somehow every American insists on doing at least this) and then I hurried you across the street, a little fur-Mistinguette, queen of Parisian music halls, in her celebrated feather gown. Upper right, in her dance of the aurora borealis.

Oscar Wilde's Old Cafe

The Cafe Neapolitan is opposite the Vandeville Theatre where Max Dearly, the French matinee idol, was playing last season in a French version of "Nothing But the Truth." It is the rendezvous of Parisian actors, playrights, journalists, and many liberal statesmen. Before the day of typewriters the leading Parisian journalists and foreign newspaper correspondents used to write their articles at the tables of the Neopolitan. I recall once how I quite startled the president of an Eastern university when I told him we were sitting at the very table where Oscar Wilde used to meet some of his intimate friends.

He was surprised when I pointed out, in the same cafe, Pioch, the picturesquely communist who not only looks like Balzac, but is said to talk and walk like him, and at another table the President of the Chamber of Deputies. He was arguing intimately with two colleagues, but, throughout the argument, he was careful not to lose a single movement made by a buxom blonde who sat opposite.

That is the way with all French men. And no one seems to be more susceptible to the charms of women than French statesmen. The business of law-making must be dull and stupid, indeed, to judge by their penchant for the company of ladies. It's easy to sympathize with that "Boulevardier" of former days, Aristide Briand, for having said at the time when the chamber was debating whether it should give him a vote of confidence and retain him as Prime Minister:

"I wouldn't mind the tedious, endless conferences so much if only there was an intermission during which I could hear the laugh and enjoy the company of a pretty woman."

I told this anecdote to my sedate companion. I know he didn't be-

King of the Boulevards

I was glad I didn't meet Duval, that delightful old "Boulevardier," the day I was with this distinguished, prudish visitor, for I know he would have been shocked beyond recovery. Luck was with me, because Duval had left for his country estate "La Herse," at Saint Ay, otherwise it would have been impossible to avoid him.

When Duval is in Paris, he doggedly, every afternoon, makes the rounds of the cafes along the boulevards, stops at each to talk with friends, to give his opinion on the latest play, to hear the newest gossip about the statesmen who is in disfavor or the dancemuse who wears only black since her lover deserted her for a Hindoo princess. And he is expected to verify or denounce the gossip as false for he knows.

He, Alexander Duval, the owner of 27 popular priced restaurants, vicious to their charm. He is gallant, affable, appreciative and tells a story delightfully, even when he is present at every first-night performance. He is an authority in himself. He is accustomed to this, for in almost every musical revue there is some allusion to, or burlesque of Duval, "Le Rot des Boulevards." He once played a burlesque of himself in a musical comedy for the first week's run of the show, and then turned the part over to the professional actor hired for the role. That proves how good a sport he is.

Another proof of his sportsmanship or good nature is the story his friends tell about how he acted when he found that he and his son were both in love with the same dancer at the Moulin Rouge.

Yet Duval never drinks. He orders mineral water always, and hands the garcon a five or ten franc tip.

Just Duval never drinks. He orders mineral water always, and hands the garcon a five or ten franc tip.

DUVAL'S DARING HATS.

Among the Americans who have you'd keep away on the nights I go to the Moulin Rouge.

Beyond the Cafe Neapolitan, farther up on the boulevards, are dozens of other cafes and restaurants, but I find nothing especially interesting in them and rarely convivial parties there. There is Margery's, famous for its fried sole, and Taverne Pouset, where they serve a delicious "petite marmite," but anyone who is interested may read all about them in any of the tourist books written about Paris. Their fame is stale, and personally, I find them a bit passe.

Vignon's High Prices

Not so with the places at the other end of the boulevards, on the elegant Rue Royale, which branches off from the boulevards at Place de la Madeleine. Here is Larue's, where the French gourmet, the epicure dines. It is expensive and exclusive, but anyone who appreciates the difference between mere food and food prepared by an expert, will find it worth while, much more so than Vignon's which charges eight francs per person for hors d'oeuvres, and correspondingly exorbitant prices for other things.

No connoisseur ever goes to Vignon's; it became famous overnight, not for its cuisine, but because of its high prices, elaborate service and luxurious appointments. On the opening night of Vignon's, last winter, a huge crowd gathered around to read the prices on the menu card displayed on the main entrance.

They hissed, boozed and jeered at the fabulous prices until a wit in the crowd said:

"Bravo, Vignon, that's the way to get even with these rich foreigners. Make them pay. The Americans, they are millionaires."

And judging from the popularity of Vignon's, one would think that Americans, both Northern and Southern, are millionaires. The more they are charged, the better they seem to like it. Perhaps it is because they can then go back to their home towns and, with the pretext of company, take part, in real life, in one of the gay, colorful, elegant restaurant scenes so common in our musical comedies; where beautiful women, in scanty gowns of rich texture, invite themselves to sit at a guest's table; where dandified young men with slick polished hair, pay lavish attention to these women, dance with them, flirt with them, and buy them champagne.

You will take part in all this, however, only if you are wise enough to get into the good graces of both Améde and Gerard, the chief chasseur ("bouncer") of Chez Maxim's, who is so important a character in the gay demimonde of Paris that a farce written about him and produced at the Palais Royal proved the biggest hit of the season.

Gerard is omnipotent. Unless he has gone often to Maxim's and are already known, I would advise you, when you do go, to ask the little bell hop who opens the door of your automobile, where Gerard is. Slip him a couple of francs for the information and then go up to Gerard. Greet him enthusiastically as if he were a brother Elk from your home town, but, to make sure the enthusiasm will be reciprocated you had better supplement it with a 10-franc note. Talk glibly about the comfortable corner table you used to have in the good old days, and Gerard will see that you get one.

He will pass the word on to Améde that a regular sport, one of the real old-timers who knows the value of service, is outside; and Améde will present himself, bow, recognize you (unless you happen to be with a lady who looks as if she might be your wife and then Améde will discreetly treat you as a stranger), and escort you to a table in the inner sanctum. Without these precautions if you try to "do" Maxim's alone you will find yourself seated in a sort of broad long hall to the right of the entrance with a lot of other second-class tourists who will all be wondering why Maxim's ever got its reputation!

American Jazz Supreme

Once in the inner sanctum you will understand more readily, why, after all is said and done, Maxim's is Maxim's — even altho, it is not the same place as before the war, according to Gerard. If you come in towards 1 o'clock in the morning you will find a room full of happy revelers, eating, drinking, dancing and singing to the strains of an American jazz band. If you were wise enough to put yourself under the protection of Gerard you will soon be one of the merrymakers.

All of these girls are sitting alone or in groups at tables. They are beautifully gowned, highly scented, white-skinned creatures. Before selecting a dining or dancing partner for the evening, I suggest that you confer with Gerard. He knows them all, their virtues — the one who is wittiest, the one who dances best and the one who is coy and ingénue. Tell Gerard which girl you want to dance with and you shall do so, exactly as if you were the hero of a musical comedy. Only here you must tip Gerard heavily in real money, not in stage bills.

Staged for Tourists

During the entire evening you will be playing a role. You will be amusing yourself, you will be doing the sort of wild, fantastic things which hitherto have existed only in your imagination. Of course, Fifie will drink champagne out of her slipper if you ask her to and Yvonne will snatch up her skirts and dance on the table, and Jeannette will seize the table lamp and pose like the artistically draped figure on the chandelier. Why not? It's all in the night's work.

But you must not think you are seeing or taking part in something typically French. The whole thing is a show, staged for your benefit and the benefit of thousands of others. Like that is where Maxim's excels. It caters毫不羞耻 and frankly to the wealthy tourist trade, and it takes the trouble to stage things so it may live up to its reputation. The beautiful women in evening clothes, who are so generous with their smiles, are not famous actresses or dancers. They are merely attractive scenery — women invited by the management to come and consume about two dollars' worth of food and drinks free of charge in return for the service of adorning the place with their charming figures. The dandified young men, with slick hair, who might well be taken for pampered sons of millionaire fathers, are employed by the management or are colleagues of the women. Their task is to flirt with the women, to invite them to dance, and to laugh and make merry so the room will have an appearance of gaiety.

And so the merry game goes on. Nothing is too extravagant, too stagy, to be enacted here. The waiters, the managers, all are accustomed to hearing weird requests from foreigners and they cater to them. I enjoy working with this crowd, because they understand what I want.

But Maxim's and all the rest that I have told you about are unsophisticated and uninitiated compared with the places of Montmartre. And it is of my excursions to these that I shall next tell you.

In next Sunday's installment of her confessions, Miss Symons paints a vivid picture of the wild night life of the celebrated Montmartre and relates her adventures there with American tourists.

Ewart Barry glanced at her quickly. She raised her voice.
"I haven't seen you since that terrible night in Bradley," she said.
"I hope your walk back to your hotel was not too unpleasant."
"Unpleasant is scarcely the word for it," laughed Barry. "I saw a man whom I suspected of — of something and I chased him. He ran into a shed and I followed him and fell thru a trap door into the canal. A policeman fished me out else I might have spent the night clinging to the edge of the canal."

"I have to thank you for what you did that night, Barry," interrupted her father. "You got my daughter out of a very ugly situation."

Barry flushed and muttered some unintelligible reply.

"I think Bradley has got over its madness now," continued Delmar. "We've got rid of the wild element. At all events work is going on as usual."

The meal was over and Alice Delmar rose.

"You men want to talk," she said. "If I shall not disturb you, I shall play on our host's most excellent piano."

John Quintus opened the door for her. In a few moments they heard the piano, softly played.

"The port is with you, Delmar," said Quintus. "Cigar?"

There was a short, embarrassed silence. Then William Delmar cleared his throat.

"I needn't beat about the bush," he said. "Do you mind telling us, Barry, how you came to evolve your process? Quintus, as an expert, will understand its technicalities."

"With pleasure."

Ewart Barry leaned forward. In a few minutes he was talking rapidly and earnestly. John Quintus watched him thru a wreath of tobacco smoke. Mr. Felton leaned on the table, caressing his chin nervously with his hand and smoking fiercely. Mr. Keeble found relief from boredom in his port.

"Now," said William Delmar, "can you tell us where we can find Mr. Kelso?"

"She is in the employment of the New Dye Company."

"She is in the employment of the New Dye Company."

The soft music in the next room suddenly stopped. Alice Delmar had risen to her feet, listening tensely.

"So you told us at the meeting, but I did not see her there when I called."

"I have seen her there," said Barry.

"I'm going to be quite frank with you, Barry," William Delmar said. "I've got my own suspicions that there's been some underhand work going on. I'll do all that man can do to put things right. If you are right about this girl, then I reckon she must have had someone else to help her — someone in our office. Tomorrow I shall call at the New Dye Company's office and see this girl."

A book of music fell with a crash on the keys of the piano in the next room. When Alice Delmar was joined by the men, it was on Ewart Barry that her eyes fell. He seated himself by her side, and they fell into conversation.

On the day following Ewart Barry's immersion in the canal Tinker Dale kept himself in hiding. He must get out of Bradley. But how to get out? And then Tinker Dale thought of Alf Pinkerton — Alf, who had been one of the old gang and who was now earning good money. He knew where Alf worked, but not where he lived, and he dared not venture out by daylight.

He adopted the expedient of sending face a leaden color, his eyes wide open and staring.

Tinker Dale dropped the poker.

A terrible fear came to him.

"Alf! — Alf! — Get up, Alf! I didn't mean to hurt you. Alf — For Gawd's sake — Alf!"

He broke off, whimpering, bending over the prone man. Then he sprang to his feet. Alf Pinkerton was dead. He had murdered him. Murderer! They hang men for that!

"Alf! — Alf! — I didn't mean to —"

He was hysterical now — frantic. He sprang to the door and with a loud cry, like that of a frightened animal, he fled from the house.

A glance at the face of William Delmar as he strode into his London office told his staff that the chief was in a most unholy temper.

William Delmar had paid two visits that day to the offices of The New Dye Company — in the morning and in the afternoon, and on both occasions had found the door locked. Inquiries had elicited the information that Mr. Tyson had not been seen for several days, during which time his office had not been opened. Yet Richard Delmar had reported at length to his father the result of an interview, which he declared he had had with Tyson only the day before.

Furthermore he had discovered the explanation of the process which had been given to him by the Company's chemist was no more than utter nonsense, and an insult to his intelligence.

He sat down heavily at his desk and rang his bell.

"Tell Mr. Richard I'd like to see him," he said to the clerk.

"Mr. Richard has not come back yet, sir."

"From lunch?"

"Yes, sir."

William Delmar glanced at the clock. It was almost 5.

"Mr. Felton, then."

William Delmar checked his watch.

"All right." He dismissed the clerk with a nod.

He turned to the small pile of letters on his desk. The topmost was addressed to Delmar Esquire:

"Dear Sir: Following our interview for a time William Delmar stared view of yesterday, we shall be willing to lend the sum of three hundred pounds to Mr. Oscar Kohn on completion of the necessary formalities, and we shall be glad if you will favor us with a call at your convenience. Yours faithfully, William Macfarlane & Son."

William Delmar read the letter again. Then he sprang to his feet. The door opened and Richard Delmar came into the room. A glance told his father that Richard had been drinking.

William Delmar picked up the letter he had cast from him.

"Read that," he commanded.

Richard Delmar strove for speech.

He dared not tell the truth. He could not face his father's scorn and contempt and wrath.

"Tell me the truth," insisted his father again.

Richard was about to speak, the door was quickly opened and Mr. Keeble came into the room in a state of extreme agitation.

"Sorry if I interrupt you, Delmar," he cried quickly. "But I must speak to you at once. Something has happened of colossal importance. I should like to speak with you privately."

Mr. Keeble glanced at Richard.

"My business is — is very distressing."

"Can't it wait?"

"Possibly it can't."

"Very well. Richard and I will finish our talk this evening." Richard slunk thru the outer office, and saw that Felton had returned. Perhaps Felton could advise him. He entered Mr. Felton's room to find him seated at his desk with his hands covering his head. Felton started up at the sound of his entrance.

"Have you seen Keeble, Richard?"

"Yes. He's with father now. What's up?"

"Everything. I was with Keeble when Bryden, the detective, told him. Has he told the chief?"

IV--THE HIDDEN DOOR

GARTH had spent an hour or so on an unimpressive case, and it was nearly midnight when he turned south from the frontier of Harlem.

From time to time a light snow fell. He walked for a long time, scarcely aware of the landmarks of the neighborhood, rehearsing thoughts which, these last few weeks, had grown familiar and unpalatable. Now, as always, they failed to guide him to any explanation of Nora's abrupt abandonment of her routine. His recent visits at the flat had thrown him into the hospitable hands of the inspector, who, however, had maintained an incomprehensible silence as to his daughter's whereabouts. Garth could read in this attitude the antagonism to his own ambitions. He was confident that the result of his campaign for Nora's heart depended wholly on the girl herself.

He realized it was growing late. Absently he turned into side street, intending to reach Third Avenue and climb the steps of the nearest elevated station.

It was the discreet murmuring of a motor that roused him from his preoccupation. A limousine of an extravagant type had pulled close to the curb at the end of the street. It pointedly attracted the detective's curiosity. The buildings, with high stoops and sunken arrowways, were of a depressing, tasteless similarity—doubtless cheap boarding-houses or dreary converted apartments. He saw that, while the chauffeur retained his seat, the door was opened from the inside and a tall man, in a high hat and a fur coat, which exposed an evening shirt, stepped with nervous haste to the sidewalk.

Garth quickened his pace. He watched with increasing interest while the man crossed the pavement, and instead of climbing the steps, stooped to place an object on the ground.

Garth, speculating on this unconventional performance, stepped casually into an arrowway, as if, indeed, it was his destination. From this shelter he observed the outcome.

After glancing quickly around the man in evening clothes straightened, returned to the limousine, and closed the door. The car rolled almost silently up the street.

When the car was nearly opposite him the man inside tapped on the pane. On a subdued note the chauffeur exclaimed again, then pulled the car to the curb and stopped.

Once more the well-dressed man left the limousine and crossed the sidewalk. For the second time he bent and placed something carefully on the ground.

As the driver set his gears and let the clutch in Garth reached through the arrowway railing and stumbled about the sidewalk for the object. His fingers found it—round, flat, hard. It was a piece of money.

Garth slipped from the arrowway. He held his find up to the nearest lamp. The piece of money was a five-dollar gold piece. He glanced along the street. The automobile had just swung from sight. He started quickly after it.

When he turned the corner he was not surprised to find the limousine hauled again, to see the young man returning from a third excursion to the house line where, doubtless, he had with an extreme anxiety placed another piece of money.

Garth broke into a run. The chauffeur glanced over his shoulder and muttered quickly to the man who sprang in. As soon as the door was closed the car started with a speed almost affirmative of flight.

Garth hastened to read the license number on its rear. As he wrote it in his pocketbook he watched the red of the tail light dimmer and disappear. He walked over and picked up a twenty-five-cent piece.

Almost certainly another coin lay close to Lexington Avenue, where the car had first stopped. He wrote to learn the denominations of that coin.

As soon as he turned the corner he saw that he would be too late. Breathlessly, he slipped into an arrowway and watched.

A singularly small figure of a man shuffled across Lexington Avenue, and, as if with an assured purpose, made for the corner stoop. The face was concealed by the turned-up collar of a diminutive overcoat and by a felt hat, drawn low over the eyes.

The man bent and picked up the coin. Afterwards he continued towards Garth, not, however, in a straight line.

Garth placed the five-dollar gold piece just outside the railing. He took his pocket lamp from his coat and held it steady.

The man had evidently caught the pallid gleaming of the gold. Without increasing his pace he shuffled across and stooped, stretching out his hand. Garth reached through the railing, and as the hand was about to close over the money, grasped it with all his strength.

He had been prepared for fight, for a struggle, but scarcely for the shrill, snarling cry that greeted his surprise.

At least Garth managed to twist the small wrist so that practically he controlled the fellow's movements. Then he pressed the button of his lamp, the light shone mercifully upon an abhorrent face.

The skin was yellow, and tight, like parchment, across the high cheek bones. The tiny eyes lay far back in rounded sockets. But it was on the head, from which the hat had fallen, that Garth's glance lingered with the most distaste. A queue was curled about it. "How did you know you'd find this money on the sidewalk?" he asked.

"No talk-o, eh? All right, little one. Then you'll have a nice free ride downtown—just as a suspicious character."

For a possibility had occurred to him from which he shrank. Still, since it existed, it dictated a clear enough duty. He stepped from the arrowway.

"Justus along, sonny."

The Chinaman was on the point of collapse. Garth practically carried him to the corner. He was relieved to turn his man over at headquarters. He saw him placed in an empty detention cell.

As soon as he was up the next morning he telephoned the Bureau of Licenses and apparently ran his one clue into a dead wall. The limousine, ho inspector pulled the old-fashioned bell handle. After an undisturbed wait he tried again. Then he put his shoulder to the door.

"Give a hand here, boys. Bring that axed."

The lock snapped under their assault. They stumbled through into the vestibule. Garth choked. He was aware of fine particles of dust in his nose and his throat. They attacked the inner door. They burst through into a black hallway. The dust rose in clouds. The inspector snatched his flashlight and fell back with an exclamation, disappointed and surprised.

"Wh—what the devil do you mean?" "No use bluffing," Garth said. "You give yourself away. But don't get scared. I'm the only one who knows."

"Who are you?"

Garth threw back his coat lapel, displaying momentarily his badge.

Black's voice rose on a shrill note.

"It's a lie! It's a lie!"

"I watched you last night," he said, "planting money here, and there—pretty, generous fancy, just to give people the joy of finding it. Men don't do such things in their right senses. I've heard of it, but the fact that you were the brother-in-law of the head of an organization that will affect these cases put me off the track. Thought you were working for him. Now that I've had a good look at you, there's no doubt."

"This way," Black said.

Garth followed, scarcely breathing.

"Where would he find Nora? How would he find her?"

A door opened ahead, and at last there was a light—a subdued, brown light, unhealthy, suggestive of a melancholy repose.

Garth turned sharply to inspect the woman who had followed him in. He drew back. He controlled his gasp of relief and gratitude, for it was Nora herself who had opened the door for them and who stood now on the threshold of the hall.

His astonishment had held him longer than was discreet. He turned at a sound to find his conductor gone. He knew what that portended. He cursed his carelessness.

Nora took his arm.

"What are you doing here?" she whispered tensely. "Go before it's too late. I knew they suspected trouble tonight, but I never dreamed of your type."

"Yes," the inspector agreed drily, "he certainly looked the type, so much so that I'd gamble that wizened brain of his held all I want to know. Maybe you'll be accommodating enough to tell me what you happened to pick him up."

"Don't fret," the inspector said somberly. "She won't give you away even if you have made an ass of yourself."

"Here's a pretty mess! Why did you bring him in at all?"

Garth threw up his hands.

"How could I tell? I only brought him in on a chance. I knew you were after the funny medicine crowd. He was up to some queer business last night, and I thought he looked the type."

"No. She had no number to give me. But this afternoon I saw her enter this house. To save a woman," Garth answered.

"It's enough for you to know that they've trapped her there, and that she means too much to me—"

"Good night, Inspector," he drawled.

"I cut the opera to take in this example of police efficiency. I hope my society, on its own initiative, will be able to make more progress with the case. At least I can learn from the police what sins to omit."

The inspector strangely, did not answer. Manford lit a cigarette, grinning, and strolled down the steps.

Garth grasped the inspector's arm. He drew him to one side.

"How were you so sure?" he asked under his breath. "Because Nora gave you this number?"

"No. She had no number to give me. But this afternoon I saw her enter this house. To save a woman," Garth answered.

DIVORCE DECREES TO TWO WIVES

Mrs. Jennie Filhart Freed From Milton E. Filhart.

WINS ON SECOND TRIAL

Bitters Files Answer. Does Not Contest Suit.

Two wives were separated from husbands by divorce route in decrees granted by Judge F. C. Becker, in common pleas court, Saturday.

Mrs. Jennie Filhart was given a divorce from Milton E. Filhart, and Mrs. Lynetta Mae Bitters was awarded a decree from William Bittters. Mrs. Filhart was given a divorce after she had made two trials at securing the decree. She instituted proceedings on August 2, last, which action was later dismissed.

Then on September 1, she filed an other suit. In her testimony she charged desertion, declaring that her husband forced her to support herself and that he made life unhappy by his conduct toward her. The couple were married in Lima on June 6, 1915. They have no children. The divorce was granted on grounds of neglect.

SUIT NOT CONTESTED

Allen William Bitters had filed an answer to the suit of his wife, he was not present in court Saturday to contest the decree. Mrs. Bitters testified that Bitters called her names such as were shocking to her sensitive nature. He ordered her, she said, to take her furniture and leave his home last March, after threatening her bodily injury. The couple were married in Newport,

Ky., on April 4, 1919.

Bitters, in his answer, declared that when he returned from work he found the household goods gone and said his wife took $230 of their joint savings from the bank. In a reply suit filed against his wife, Bitters secured return of the

wife, Bitters secured return of the decrees on the grounds of extreme cruelty and she will be obliged to pay the court costs. She was restored to her former name of Lynetta Mae Spencer.

WHAT ARTICLES FIND
NO SALE? STICKLER
QUERY FOR MERCHANTS

"How many articles are carried in downtown stores that are never called for, and what becomes of them?" was the question asked several Lima merchants Saturday.

The question served to stick all merchants queried. Some of their answers are worthy of repeating:

"You may say for me there is no such article carried in our store," said the head of one of the largest department stores. "Everything moves here."

"Humph, I couldn't say unless it would be corkers," said the man ager of a 5 and 10.

"Give us a week to figure that one out," quoth another.

Lima merchants are progressing in having stocks that are moved from their shelves, apparently.

TONE IN WALL-ST IS STRONG

Adjustment Reflected in Markets During Past Week.

UPWARD MOVEMENT HOLDS

Financial Center Pins Faith in Arms Conference.

NEW YORK—This was holiday week in the world of finance. The six days were so broken up by the elections and armistice celebrations and holidays that there was little chance for the week to develop a financial tendency.

In contrast with the preceding week, the investment markets were quiet and were reflective of some adjustment of accounts following upon the strong forward swing in progress for the last fortnight.

In stocks, however, the price tone was distinctly strong, not because of special outside interest, but rather because the bear traders were at a loss how to proceed.

The steels, oils and rails shared in the buying, which was something more than mere squaring of borrowing requirements. The equipment shares were influenced by the coming of new locomotive and rail orders and inquiries indicating that the roads were beginning to turn their thoughts to maintenance and equipment. The recent reduction in price of steel rails probably enhanced this influence.

Confidence in business revival was somewhat damped by failure of the senate to reduce the maximum tax within limits which would encourage the rich to put their surplus funds in other than tax exempt securities.

Wall Street seemed to be pinning a lot of faith and hope in the Washington disarmament conference, believing that it cannot completely fail, and probably will result in acquiescence to the cries for economy and reduction of armament and consequently relieve the strain on the world's pocketbook.

The upward movement of industries was maintained Saturday in the market. Bullish demonstrations were confined to a handful of speculative leaders such as Baldwin, International Paper, Mexican Petroleum and Haskell Barker. The equipment group was especially strong. The rails were not affected by the announcement that rail employees will shortly be notified of a proposed reduction of ten per cent in wages.

FINANCIAL GOSSIP.

Kansas City wire that drouth reports are so numerous they must be considered a factor. Modern Miller is bullish, saying apprehension is growing.

Chicago also is worried over the southwest drouth.

The drouth looks one of the worst that starts in history with over 1,000,000 acres involved.

Winnipeg says that elevator companies are selling all their Alberta wheat to the coast at two or three cents better than could be secured at Fort Williams.

Cash wheat looks two cents higher; corn 1-2 higher and oats a quarter.

Buying of May wheat by a strong commission house Saturday that was a good seller Thursday found the market with high offerings and made the advance.

SHORT SHAVINGS

Theodore Tangeman, Wapakoneta attorney, in court here Thursday, reports an accident at his home one morning, when pop corn became mixed in batter for pancakes.

"The skillet popped the corn and the cokes were blown to bits," Theodore said.

Judge Emmett J. Jackson, who was a captain in the 308th Ammunition Train during the world war, says he had a cook in his outfit named Rockey, who was anxious to get up with the "Doughboys." His wish was finally gratified and he was placed in charge of a cook shack within a short distance of the front. Nothing happened for a long time and then a "77" dropped in the rear of the cook shack. Rockey left. He was found two days later.

"What did you do?" he was asked. "Saved the government $10,000," said the cook. "That's what it would have cost if I'd stayed and been killed."

Captain Mort Dawson of the police force started out to hunt ducks. "What's the limit?" he asked a friend. He was informed 11 was all that could be shot legally in one day.

"That's fine," said Dawson, "I know where there is a pen with just that number."

Chet Tucker, W. High-st jeweler says the past season was a poor one for anglers, but that it doesn't affect in the least the fish stories told by some of his fellow anglers.

"They just ignore the season of 1921 and go back in their stories to 1920," Tucker said.

Jim Shockley, Wapakoneta, went squirrel hunting several times the past fall and was fairly successful, but he never did find the squirrel that played a trick on him.

"I was standing under a tree one day," Shockley said, "and while I was eating an apple, the tricky bushy tail dropped a nut on my bare head. And it was a good sized nut, too."

KILL THAT COLD!

IT MAY KILL YOU!

Use The Nash Treatment—No Medicines—External Applications—Safe—Quick—Pleasant—Sure

Why worry along with a cold? While it is wearing itself out it is also wearing you out and may lead to serious complications.

No need to allow a cold to stay with you. Neither is there need to dose yourself with sickening medicines, because any cold can be driven out quickly with Nash's Salve—a pleasant combination of the old-fashioned things your grandmother used. This salve is applied externally, but acts internally, as it is inhaled and absorbed. The Nash Treatment is now favored above all others because it can be used with safety by children, adults and very old people without fear of the usual after effects resulting from the taking of strong medicines.

First, go now to the drug store for a bottle of Nash's Croup-Pneumonia Salve. It is sold in 30 and 60-cent sizes. Better get the large size, as it is cheaper.

To treat any kind of a cold, no matter how slight or how deep-seated, begin by applying the salve up each nostril. If this does not open the head molt some of the salve in a spoon and inhale the vapors; this will bring immediate relief and will drive out a head cold in a few hours if repeated at intervals.

Do This Tonight.

If you have a bad cold, one that's deep down in the chest, follow above directions and at bedtime apply wet hot towels to throat and chest for possibly five minutes to open the pores. Then with hand lave with Nash's Salve liberally; cover with warm flannel, arrange bedclothes loosely around head so that vapors may be breathed all night, and go to sleep.

Tomorrow morning you will see marked improvement, the cold will be on the march, you can go back to your duties feeling fine again.

Thousands upon thousands of people are using this simple treatment now and praising it to their friends. The sale of Nash's Croup-

WATCH THE BABY

When He Sneezes Get the Bottle of Nash's Salve, Quick!

Take good care of baby. First time he sneezes or snifflies get the bottle of Nash's, put a little of the salve in each nostril. He will not object, the treatment is very pleasant, in fact, so soothing as to quiet fretful youngsters in a few minutes.

Older children take colds easily as adults, but due to the fact that they cannot take strong medicines their colds must not be allowed to grow, as they may cause serious consequences.

Nash's Croup-Pneumonia Salve can be used without fear of over-dosage, because it is used externally, and such things as oil of camphor, oil of menthol, oil of turpentine and such things as oil of sassafras, thyme, oil of lavender, oil of rosemary, oil of petrodatum, though stronger than the old-fashioned remedy it is really pleasant to use and will not stain or soil the clothing.

Used on colds, coughs, asthma, bronchitis and kindred ailments this salve simply works wonders.

Adults find the Nash Treatment especially effective and will receive its benefits just as quickly. Thousands of families therefore keep a bottle of Nash's Salve in the house all the time and very often father has another bottle at the office. It is put up in two sizes, 30 and 60 cents, and sold by all druggists.

Don't Take Chances.

A word of caution: Colds are dangerous; don't trifl with one, it can develop into pneumonia overnight if your system is not in excellent condition.

Best thing to do is to use Nash's Salve in nostrils upon the first indications of a cold, therefore driving it out before it gets a good start.

When baby catches cold, rub Nash's Salve on his chest; when his little nose starts running put Nash's Salve in each nostril. The fumes or vapor from this wonderful preparation will open his head and soothe the inflamed membranes without the use of medicines and without upsetting the little stomach.
